County Official Recalls Decree Voiced In 1931 Against Machines

TWO VILLAGES VISITED

Circleville Police Act Following Move Of Law Officer

Slot machines and punch boards were disappearing Monday as the word circulated that the sheriff's department and police had opened a campaign against the devices.

Two slot machines and six punch boards were confiscated Sunday evening in New Holland and Williamsport by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and his deputies, Robert Adkins and Robert Armstrong.

Sheriff Radcliff said he found a slot machine and two punchboards in two restaurants in New Holland. Two more punchboards were confiscated from a Williamsport store. One of the slot machines paid off in packages of cigarettes, the other in money, the sheriff said.

"I'm not going to be bothered with junk like this in the county," the sheriff warned. "They (owners) would fill this county full of those devices if we didn't keep after them."

"I issued a warning in 1931, three months after I took office that gaming devices would be confiscated. If the owners want their machines confiscated they can just keep putting them out."

The police department confiscated three punch boards Monday from Circleville business places. They were continuing their search for more of the devices.

SCHOOL STARTS AT SALT CREEK AFTER VACATION

Saltcreek township school was reopened Monday. After being closed Friday because the number of absences due to colds and influenza. There were 56 children of the 184 enrolled absent last Thursday when the decision to close was made. The absence list Monday was 38.

Although absences in all county schools have been high during the last week the Saltcreek school is the only one to close.

Absences have been heavy in the city schools but not sufficient to consider closing any of the buildings.

STATE SECRETARY HURLS DEFIANCE AT DICTATORSHIPS

In 'Crime Club'

ARREST of five youths between 16 and 20 years old was declared by Cleveland police to round up a "crime club" which operated under a constitution that threatened dire punishment to "squealers and rats." Police reported confessions cleared up nine robberies and theft of four automobiles since last October. One of the alleged members, Clyde Finohr, whose father was a policeman who died in 1932, is pictured.

G. O. P. RALLIES IN OBSERVANCE OF LINCOLN DAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Republican leaders from all sections of the nation were gathering in New York today for the annual Lincoln Day dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight.

Former President Herbert Hoover and National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton held the list of speakers who will orate on the topic: "Victory Through Unity in 1940."

Other speakers listed are Mrs. William Henry Hayes, president of the Women's National Republican club; Gov. Ralph L. Carr, of Colorado; Gov. Julius P. Heil, of Wisconsin; Gov. Harlan H. Bushfield, of South Dakota; Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, of Michigan; Sen. Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin; Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Sizoo, of the Collegiate Reformed church of St. Nicholas.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 13.—Ohio Governor John W. Bricker was in Philadelphia today, preparing his second out-of-the-state speech to be given before a Lincoln Day audience of the Quaker City's famous Union League tonight.

National Leaders of the Republican command gathered here today to hear the Buckeye governor, prominently mentioned as a presidential nominee possibility. Two weeks ago Bricker spoke in Topeka at the annual Kansas day banquet.

PRISON CHIEF TO SEEK DEFENSES FOR ALCATRAZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Determined to convert Alcatraz into the most impenetrable penal stronghold in the world, the federal government shortly will spend approximately $250,000 for escape-proof equipment on the grim island in San Francisco bay.

Returning from an inspection of existing facilities at Alcatraz, U. S. Prison Director James V. Bennett revealed today that additional safeguards will be necessary to prevent escape attempts by the several hundred desperadoes confined there.

Hull Informs Grasping Nations Uncle Sam Will Fight

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The totalitarian powers—Germany, Italy and Japan—were warned today that any move on their part to challenge America's "vital and cherished interests" will be met by "determined" armed resistance.

The warning was voiced by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who left a sick bed to assert the United States' position in the face of a threatening new European crisis over Germany's demands for colonies and Italy's pressure for France's African empire. He spoke on a coast-to-coast National Broadcasting program sponsored by the New York World's Fair.

"Human rights and property rights lie at the very foundation of international relationships," Hull declared. "These rights must be maintained."

Strength Imperative
Hull said the United States must have a strong army, navy and air corps to defend these rights.

"It is the sacred duty of a government worthy of the name to maintain adequate defense forces," he said.

"The creation and maintenance of adequate defensive forces must go hand in hand with unflinching efforts to prevent war by perfecting the machinery of peace and by eliminating the cause of conflict."

Hull avoided a direct repetition of President Roosevelt's declaration to congress that the United States must back up Great Britain and France to save democracy. But Hull did repeat the recent assertion by British Prime Minister Chamberlain, directed at Chancellor Hitler, that "one party can start war but two are required to negotiate peace."

"We know that circumstances may arise in which a nation's will to remain at peace may be thwarted by the actions of others," Hull said. "Peaceful settlement is possible."

HIRAM COLLEGE SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS IN FLAMES

HIRAM, Feb. 13.—Students and faculty at Hiram college today surveyed the damage done when fire swept through the two-story south wing of the Teachout-Cooley memorial library, destroying books, papers and valuable records and damaging a $7,500 telescope.

Total damage was estimated at $30,000. The fire, started by an overheated pipe leading from the furnace to the library, was fought by students and volunteer fire departments from Hiram, Mantua, Garrettsville and Windham.

Many books and co-ed students saved a book-passing line which cleared the first floor of the structure. Among the papers lost were government records from the time that James A. Garfield was president of the institution, and files of phonetic literature compiled by Dr. John S. Kenyon, consulting editor of Webster's international dictionary and an authority on pronunciation. The damaged telescope was housed on top of the library.

The Hiram administration building was destroyed with a loss of $150,000 by fire of undetermined origin Nov. 13, 1934.

POLING ESTATE $9,823

Jasper E. Poling, Tarleton, left an estate valued at $9,823.73, according to inventory and appraisal filed Monday in Probate court. Real estate is listed at $8,450. The estate of Mrs. Vina Brown, Monroe township, is listed at $3,230, including real estate worth $2,750.

FIREMAN KILLED FIGHTING SAN FRANCISCO FLAMES

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Fireman Frank Malley was killed today when a fire burst out in the top floor of a six-story loft building in the heart of the downtown commercial section. At least one other fireman was injured and was taken to a hospital for treatment. Flames sent flaming embers soaring to roofs of adjoining structures.

221 TO SHARE $34,551 FARM PROGRAM FUND

Checks, Distributed From County Office, Boost Total To $142,080

Checks totaling $34,551.89 were received Monday by the Pickaway County Agricultural Conservation committee for distribution to county farmers.

The checks represent an intermediate payment under the 1938 agricultural conservation program. The checks will be distributed to 221 persons. Notices were sent out immediately for the farmers to report at the conservation committee's offices in the Farm Bureau home to receive their payments.

These checks make a total of $142,080 received to date on the 1938 farm program. Payments will total about $200,000 when all are received, Paul Mattheas, secretary of the county committee, said.

JUDGE EXCUSES BOND SURETIES IN $5,000 TRIAL

Sureties on the bond of Dennis Kautz, Darby township justice of peace, defendant in the $5,000 suit brought by Ralph Leesburg, Scioto township, were dismissed as defendants in Common Pleas court Monday when trial of the suit, charging false imprisonment, got under way.

Judge Meeker Terwilliger ruled the liability of the bondsmen does not include the alleged wrongful acts of the justice of peace. Those who were sureties on the bond of the justice of peace were G. W. Cushing, H. C. Hill, Walter Spradlin and Jesse Stump.

Leesburg charges he was detained by the justice of peace and ordered committed to the county jail for 30 days and fined $10 and costs on a "pretended" charge of permitting a minor to operate a motor vehicle without an operator's license. He was released after a habeas corpus action in Probate court.

Jurors hearing the case are Pearl Strous, Saltcreek township; Harley Mace, Perry township; Vida Mosier, Monroe township; Floyd W. Hook, Harrison township; Emma Steinhauer, Deer creek township; Frank Hudson, Scioto township; W. A. Duval and Mrs. Wayne Brown, Madison township; Nettie McCord, Walnut township; Turney Pontius, Pickaway township; Jennie Sweyer, Circleville; and Clay Hitler, Washington township.

ICEBOAT OVERTURNS, DROWNS TWO YOUTHS IN SPRINGFIELD LAKE

AKRON, Feb. 13.—William Oldham, Jr., 12, and Frank Harris Pouncey, Jr., 14, schoolboys in suburban Lakemore, were dead today, drowned when a sudden change in the wind swept their improved iceboat into open water on Springfield lake.

Elmer Poor, a playmate, saw the boys drown. He told firemen who attempted to rescue the boys, that they had converted a sled into an "iceboat" by using a discarded sign as a sail. The bodies were recovered by Lakemore firemen.

BILL TO ERECT NEW BUILDING AT ARMORY READY

Representative Radcliff To Introduce Measure For $10,000 Expenditure

WAR STRENGTH SOUGHT

Battery Outfit Would Be Boosted To More Than 150 Persons

Legislation through which a modern garage would be added to the Ohio National Guard armory in Circleville at a cost of about $10,000 was scheduled to start through the Ohio general assembly Monday afternoon following presentation by William D. Radcliff, Williamsport, representative from Pickaway county.

Mr. Radcliff said Monday that his bill would be presented before the deadline Monday afternoon.

The bill asks that a garage be built to house trucks used by the Service Battery, 136th Field Artillery, under command of Second Lieutenant J. M. Lynch. "I hope to get the Field Artillery built up to war strength," Radcliff declared before going to Columbus to participate in Monday's session of the legislature.

41 Men in Unit

The unit at present consists of 41 men and has five trucks. Full strength would mean that the battery would number more than 150 men with 20 trucks.

Mr. Radcliff was considering two additional measures for introduction, but had not decided whether they would be submitted. One would establish a supervisor of education for handicapped children of Ohio and the other would control itinerant merchants.

The representative disclosed that he had voted for the Dunn bill, designed to prevent husband and wife from being employed on the state payroll at the same time. "The measure does not include the welfare department," Mr. Radcliff said, "so husbands and wives in charge of various state institutions will not lose their places." The house passed the Dunn bill. It is scheduled for a test in the senate next.

SENATOR SEEKS AIRPLANE UNITS FOR GUARDSMEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Stressing the need for greater national defense, Senator Barbour (R) of New Jersey, today introduced in the senate a bill to provide additional aviation units in the National Guard.

The bill would increase National Guard aviation units to two in each state or territory to create a large reserve of pilots trained in military aviation, and equipment. The war department would authorize the locations of the new squadrons.

"The army can always use additional observation squadrons, and the training given members of the National Guard in aviation would be invaluable in time of war," Barbour said.

Barbour introduced another bill which would authorize organization of an infantry battalion of Negro troops in the New Jersey National Guard.

THREE WORKERS KILLED, OTHERS HURT IN BLAST

MARS HILL, N. C., Feb. 13.—Three persons were reported killed and five others were injured today when a quantity of dynamite being used by a highway construction crew exploded.

According to first reports, the men were killed as they stood beside a fire near where the dynamite was placed. Names of the victims were not immediately available.

FAITHFUL WAIT IN DOWNPOUR TO MOURN PONTIFF

Second Of Nine Funeral Masses Intoned In St. Peter's Chapel

MANY PILGRIMS ARRIVE

Italian Railroads Operate Specials; 33 Cardinals In Attendance

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13.—Giving promise that the multitudes of the faithful who pay last tribute before the body of Pope Pius XI will be swollen to more than 400,000 by nightfall, 80,000 mourners at a time scorned personal discomfort today to stand in a chill rain outside St. Peter's.

As the wet and bedraggled throngs moved slowly and with quickly mumbled prayers past the candle-light chapel in the vast dimness of the basilica where the dead pontiff lay in state, the congregation of cardinals proceeded with the tradition-bound measures which will end, probably after March 1, with the choice of one of their number as new pope.

Thirty-three cardinals were present at today's congregation, the third held since the death of Pius. Afterwards the commission of three cardinals appointed to handle details of the conclave at which the next pontiff will be chosen held another session.

Second Mass Intoned

In the half-darkness of St. Peter's, above the shuffle of the mourners' feet, the second of the nine funeral masses for the Pope was intoned by Archbishop Pisani before the main altar in the nave.

Outside in the downpour, closely herded by police and troop reinforcements, an uncomfortable but patient and never-grumbling crowd moved forward inch by inch. The queues stretched along the Via Della Conciliazione and across St. Peter's square from the basilica to the bridge of St. Angelo—a distance of nearly a half a mile.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13.—Favored by a rising tide of support, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, chamberlain of the Holy Roman church and former papal secretary of state, emerged in the opinion of high Vatican circles today as the leading candidate for the papacy in succession to Pope Pius XI.

Some had umbrellas and raincoats, but many had no protection from the rain. Many tried to protect themselves with newspapers, but the paper soon became sodden and useless. Virtually all carried lunch packages, since they were prepared to wait four or five hours before entering the basilica. St. Peter's, it was announced, will be closed at noon tomorrow to allow time for preparations for the burial, which will take place about the time the Angelus rings in the early evening.

With many newlyweds among them, 500 Hungarian pilgrims arrived today. They had been planning to visit the Vatican to receive Pope Pius's benediction on the day (Continued on Page Two)

STRANGE DEATH OF ARMY OFFICER BRINGS INQUIRY

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 13.—Found burned beyond recognition in an automobile, the mysterious death of Lieut. William D. Davis, 32, of Fort Benning was under investigation by army and civil authorities today.

The victim's identity remained unknown for several hours after it had been found near Phoenix City, Ala. until established by dental records.

Son of the late Col. William B. Davis for whom Fort Davis in the Canal Zone is named, Lieut. Davis is survived by widow, mother, sister and a brother, Capt. Frank Davis.

Officers said early today that the cause and other facts surrounding his death were undetermined.

Funeral services will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church in Westerville at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday, and at the Klever funeral home in Washington C. H. at 2:30 p. m. for the Rev. Peter L. Mark, 90, retired Methodist minister. Burial will be in the Washington C. H. cemetery.

The Rev. Mr. Mark was a former pastor of the churches at Tarleton, Harrisburg and South Bloomfield.

He died of injuries received Jan. 31 when he was struck by an auto when he was crossing the Three C highway in Westerville. Death was due to head injuries and shock.

He was a native of Washington C. H. and was a member of the Ohio M. E. conference for 64 years.

SENATOR SEEKS AIRPLANE UNITS FOR GUARDSMEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—Stressing the need for greater national defense, Senator Barbour (R) of New Jersey, today introduced in the senate a bill to provide additional aviation units in the National Guard.

The bill would increase National Guard aviation units to two in each state or territory to create a large reserve of pilots trained in military aviation, and equipment. The war department would authorize the locations of the new squadrons.

"The army can always use additional observation squadrons, and the training given members of the National Guard in aviation would be invaluable in time of war," Barbour said.

Barbour introduced another bill which would authorize organization of an infantry battalion of Negro troops in the New Jersey National Guard.

THREE WORKERS KILLED, OTHERS HURT IN BLAST

MARS HILL, N. C., Feb. 13—Three persons were reported killed and five others were injured today when a quantity of dynamite being used by a highway construction crew exploded.

According to first reports, the men were killed as they stood beside a fire near where the dynamite was placed.

Names of the victims were not immediately available.

Coast Guard Cutter In Search Of Craft Feared Down

JUNEAU, Alaska, Feb. 13—Batting through mountainous seas, the coast guard cutter Haida early today was steaming into Stephens Passage, 15 miles south of Juneau, where a commercial transport hydroplane carrying five persons is believed to have been forced down.

The plane piloted by Lon Cope and carrying four passengers, was last heard from yesterday afternoon, when Cope radioed that he had encountered a sudden squall. At the time the Marine Airways craft, enroute to Juneau from Ketchikan, was less than 25 miles from its destination.

Two other commercial planes which passed over Stephens Passage late yesterday reported that they had not sighted the missing ship. The Canadian Pacific steamer Norah, enroute from Skagway to Juneau, steamed along the lost plane's course without locating it.

They had not sighted the missing plane were John Chappell, an insurance agent, and three traveling salesmen, Earl Clifford, John Chamberlain and E. E. Eek.

F. D. R. BEDFAST FOR THIRD DAY; VOYAGE PLANNED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—President Roosevelt was confined to bed for the third successive day today, suffering from grippé, but plans for his departure on Thursday for a scheduled two weeks sea voyage remained unchanged.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, the White House physician, said the executive's illness was "not serious," but that inasmuch as all precautions to protect Mr. Roosevelt's health were being taken, he had urged the President to remain in bed.

The President's projected cruise will carry him into the Caribbean, where he will witness the Atlantic fleet maneuvers.

FAITHFUL WAIT IN DOWNPOUR TO MOURN PONTIFF

Second Of Nine Funeral Masses Intoned In St. Peter's Chapel

MANY PILGRIMS ARRIVE

Italian Railroads Operate Specials; 33 Cardinals In Attendance

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13—Giving promise that the multitudes of the faithful who pay last tribute before the body of Pope Pius XI will be swollen to more than 400,000 by nightfall, 80,000 mourners at a time scorned personal discomfort today to stand in a chill rain outside St. Peter's.

As the wet and bedraggled throngs moved slowly and with quickly mumbled prayers past the candle-light chapel in the vast dimness of the basilica where the dead pontiff lay in state, the congregation of cardinals proceeded with the tradition-bound measures which will end, probably after March 1, with the choice of one of their number as new pope.

Thirty-three cardinals were present at today's congregation, the third held since the death of Pius. Afterwards the commission of three cardinals appointed to handle details of the conclave at which the next pontiff will be chosen held another session.

Second Mass Intoned

In the half-darkness of St. Peter's, above the shuffle of the mourners' feet, the second of the nine funeral masses for the Pope was intoned by Archbishop Pisani before the main altar in the nave.

Outside in the downpour, closely herded by police and troop reinforcements, an uncomfortable but patient and never-grumbling crowd moved forward inch by inch. The queues stretched along the Via Della Conciliazione and across St. Peter's square from the basilica to the bridge of St. Angelo—a distance of nearly a half a mile.

Some had umbrellas and raincoats, but many had no protection from the rain. Many tried to protect themselves with newspapers, but the paper soon became sodden and useless. Virtually all carried lunch packages, since they were prepared to wait four or five hours before entering the basilica.

St. Peter's, it was announced, will be closed at noon tomorrow to allow time for preparations for the burial, which will take place about the time the Angelus rings in the early evening.

With many newlyweds among them, 500 Hungarian pilgrims arrived today. They had been planning to visit the Vatican to receive Pope Pius's benediction on the day (Continued on Page Two)

STRANGE DEATH OF ARMY OFFICER BRINGS INQUIRY

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 13—Found burned beyond recognition in an automobile, the mysterious death of Lieut. William D. Davis, 32, of Fort Benning was under investigation by army and civil authorities today.

The victim's identity remained unknown for several hours after it had been found near Phoenix City, Ala. until established by dental records.

Son of the late Col. William B. Davis for whom Fort Davis in the Canal Zone is named, Lieut. Davis is survived by widow, mother, sister and a brother, Capt. Frank Davis.

Officers said early today that the cause and other facts surrounding his death were undetermined.

following the anniversary of his coronation. They came, instead, to view his body and attend the second funeral mass.

The cardinals' congregation also received Prince Chigi, head of the Knights of Malta, ancient Catholic noble order, and 13 other knights. The house of Chigi plays an important role following the death of a pope, for its members are hereditary marshals of the papacy and guardians of the conclave where the new pope is named.

Prince Chigi read a message of condolence, and Granito Cardinal Di Belmonte, dean of the cardinal bishops, replied that the condolences of the Knights of Malta were especially appreciated.

Seal Broken

Then in another symbolic ceremony, Mgr. Borgia presented the cardinals with the seal of the apostolic chancery and, as customary, it was broken. A new one will be made after the election.

Two hundred thousand mourners, the rich and the poor, the proud and the humble, aged and the strong, glimpsed the catafalque yesterday and it was estimated that a like number would file past today, even though this is a work day and few can spare the time from their labors.

Tomorrow will be the last day that his sorrowing people may view the earthly remains of the "pope of peace," for the congregation of cardinals who hold the papal authority until a new pontiff is elected have ruled that when the Angelus is sounded Tuesday evening the body of piety will be immured in the low-celling crypt of St. Peter's.

financial system, continue with the administration "ripper" program and pass a school note refunder bill.

Several bills abolishing earmarking of revenues for specific purposes were up for house action after passing unanimously in the senate. Revenues from liquor profits, intangible tax and use tax would go into the general fund under the provisions of three measures.

The Republican-controlled house was expected to rush the job insurance reorganization bill to early passage in order to balk efforts of attorneys for labor interests who planned an attack on the emergency clause.

Rep. W. H. Whetso (D-Lawrence) an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, said labor forces planned an appeal to the Ohio supreme court to upset the 90-day clause.

Today was the deadline for offering of bills without suspending rules. Only 130 measures were in the senate hopper and 351 in the house. The house will meet this afternoon and representatives were expected to swell the bill total past 500. The senate meets in skeleton session tonight.

O. S. U. TRUSTEES ORDER INQUIRY

Dargusch Chairman Of Committee To Probe 'Red' Activities

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13—Appointment of a committee to hold a public investigation of recent charges that "un-Americanism" exists on Ohio State university's campus was ordered by the university's board of trustees today.

Carlton S. Dargusch, Columbus, the board member who offered the resolution calling for the investigation, was appointed chairman of the committee and H. S. Atkinson and Dr. C. J. Altnaier were selected as other members.

The resolution, adopted unanimously read in part:

"That the committee be instructed by the board of trustees, for its guidance, that the board recognize the fundamental rights of freedom of speech and academic freedom. The board also recognizes that there is a logical and definite distinction between the advocacy of controversial matters as contrasted to the academic consideration of those matters:

"That such investigating committee be authorized and empowered to require the appearance of any person or the production of any records in the possession of any person subject to university discipline and to invite persons not subject to university discipline to appear before the committee in the course of investigation.

"That all hearings be open to the public press in order that the public may be fully advised and that reports of the committee, when submitted to the board, be available to the public."

The committee was ordered to "work in full cooperation with all public officials" and to make its report not later than April 1.

The Franklin county council of the American Legion recently demanded that the General Assembly conduct an investigation of subversive activities at the university. A resolution providing for such an inquiry was introduced in the senate. Another was put in the house hopper.

Dargusch, in a prepared statement, said that although charges of "Red activity" had been officially denied, a "distinct issue had been created."

"I feel," Dargusch said, "that the situation should not be prejudged and recommendations should be made only after full and exhaustive public hearings by a duly appointed committee of the board of trustees."

With Old Chicken Coop For Edifice Neighborhood Gang Founds Church With 12-Year-Old Boy As Minister

The congregation . . . whose ages run from 2 to 16

CANTON, Pa., Feb. 13—"Oh, we knew a lot of kids who didn't go to Sunday school much and we didn't have anything special to do on Sunday afternoons so we decided to start a church."

Thus casually does 12-year-old Charles Rockwell summarize the organization of the Junior Church of Christ in an abandoned chicken coop where between 20 and 30 neighborhood youngsters, ages 2 to 16, gather each Sunday to listen to him preach.

And he's disproved the old saying that a prophet is not without honor except in his own country by enthusing his entire family over the project. Sister Jane, 14, plays the organ which the youthful minister bought with his birthday money, is superintendent of the Sunday school and primary teacher, while brother Jimmie, 9, is janitor, and Edward Payne, a friend, is superintendent of grounds. These three have been Charles' faithful Fridays, but even Fridays sometimes slip up and then the little minister may be found sweeping the church, pinch-hitting at the organ or conscientiously shoveling a path through the snow to the front door.

This has been going on since last March when Charles first conceived the church idea. Blessed with a pair of understanding parents he found no obstacles in his path as he renovated the old coop behind the garage, put up partitions and on the door nailed a cross and a sign announcing to the world that the church was open.

The first Sunday eight youngsters came to hear him preach. Since then the number has steadily increased. One Sunday last summer 40 hot, perspiring children packed the church where an Easter bunny basket serves as a collection plate, a double deck table is a pulpit and the pews are an odd combination of home-made seats, discarded dining room chairs and a bridge set. The young enthusiasts have painted intricate water-color designs on the small pane windows and the resulting soft glow adds to the church-like appearance of the interior.

The Children's Aid society cares for financial matters when the collection money is not enough to buy kerosene for the stove and Sunday school papers. Occasionally a crisis arises and the Rockwells children saddle their pony and sell rides for a penny each as a sort of emergency measure. Last summer the Aid society raised $5 with a fair and bought a church stove with the proceeds.

The Minister

Charles is a perfectly normal American boy who skates and slides all winter and spends his Summers swimming and playing baseball. When he grows up he wants to be an electrician, a carpenter, a farmer, an architect or, maybe, a preacher.

Concerned primarily with behavior, the little minister takes his subjects from the Bible or from the lives of townspeople. He depends on simple, original parables to illustrate his meaning and, without notes, preaches 20-minute sermons that hold the rapt attention of his congregation.

The announcements include such notices as this: "The regular Thursday meeting of the Children's Aid will be held this week."

Choir rehearsal on Saturday. Jane will be glad to work with any of you who can sing or wish to learn how. We want a choir just like any church and all those who come to rehearsal may sing in the choir Sunday.

"Saturday morning we will clean up the church if it doesn't storm. I know you like to play in the snow and if you're having a good time you don't HAVE to come, but I'd like you to."

Sermon Subjects

Is it hard to think up a sermon? The youthful sage admits that it is—"kinda". He has preached on the uses of prayer, the evils of money and drink and once put a good scare into his congregation by elaborating upon the end of the world.

He never tells anyone ahead of time what he is going to preach about. Why? Well, one Sunday he was all set to talk on thankfulness, but the congregation was full of skittish spirits that day and giggles predominated over notes as they sang the opening hymn. Quick to seize the opportunity, Charles changed his subject to reverence, and finally brought his audience to heel with a good, old-fashioned harangue on behavior in church.

able only if both sides are willing to resort to it."

He dwelt on "the preservation of peace for our nation" as being its leader's basic task, but declared the country must be ever ready to fight off attack.

"This nation's most vital and cherished interests, however, may be challenged and attacked by another nation and to such a challenge a free people like ourselves can offer no other reply but determined defense and resistance," Hull stated.

"So long as such a possibility exists, it is the sacred duty of government worthy of the name to maintain adequate defense forces."

JENNIE HAMPP DIES AT 75 IN ASHVILLE HOME

Mrs. Jennie Hampp, 73, wife of Nelson Hampp, died at her home in Ashville at 7:30 p. m. Sunday after a long illness.

Mrs. Hampp was born Sept. 30, 1865, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wyant.

Besides the husband there are two sons, Howard of Stoutsville, and Roy of S. Scioto street, Circleville, and a daughter, Mrs. Olive Hoffman of South Bloomfield, surviving. Fourteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren survive.

Mr. Hampp is seriously ill.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday but the time and place has not been announced. The body was removed to the Hill funeral home in Kingston.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—Under the most impenetrable shroud of secrecy ever imposed about naval maneuvers, the United States fleet, divided into two gigantic opponents, today feinted at each other in tropical seas in a test of the fleet's ability to keep an enemy from gaining a foothold in the Western Hemisphere.

A "black" fleet under command of Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews steamed toward the Panama Canal to ward off a simulated attack from Europe by a "white" fleet under command of Admiral E. C. Kalbfus.

For three weeks, the two powerful fleets, like circling wrestlers, will maneuver for an opening and a death-blow.

The war games will be witnessed in one spectacular phase by President Roosevelt. The chief executive is scheduled to board a cruiser at Charleston, S. C., Saturday and steam southward to the Caribbean.

Wartime secrecy was imposed as the navy went into action. Not even newspaper correspondents were permitted aboard the warships of the opposing fleets. Both powerful units will use codes unknown to the foe to make it impossible to detect their whereabouts. The ships will maneuver at full speed at night without even running lights showing. Many times during the day they will be cloaked by smoke screens, laid by destroyers and planes.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES, O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: I have a large pile of rotted manure and would like to know how much copper sulfate I should apply to it to control the fungus in it.

ANSWER: Since I do not see any advantage in stopping the growth of fungi in the manure, I see no reason for applying copper sulfate to it. In addition to this, there would be the danger of the accumulation of copper, producing toxic effects when used in the garden.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me the dates of the big Spring flower shows?

ANSWER: The National Flower Show is at Houston, Texas, Feb. 12 to 19; the International Flower Show at New York, March 13 to 18. Other big Spring flower shows are at Boston, March 16 to 21; St. Louis, March 18 to 26; Philadelphia, March 20 to 25; Chicago March 25 to April 2, and Detroit, March 25 to April 2.

QUESTION: We have a large sugar maple around 35 years old that has borers working in it around this time of the year. They go almost to the top of the tree and right now it is bleeding profusely. We have several younger maples but they do not have the borer. What measures should we take to get rid of the borers?

ANSWER: Since a number of borers attack the maple, I would not want to tell you what to do for this one until I could at least see a specimen of the damage it is causing. If you care to send in a branch showing the injury, I believe we will be able to identify the borer and make definite recommendations for its control.

QUESTION: Can you send me anything pertaining to the care of roses? Mine have brown spots, the leaves fall off, and bugs as big as bees ruin the bloom.

ANSWER: You will find complete instructions for the control of the black spot on the rose leaves and the rose bugs in our bulletin Garden Roses. You may obtain a copy of this from your county agricultural agent.

QUESTION: Perhaps you can tell me how to eliminate the sowbugs in my yard. We soddied our yard last Fall and it seems as though the sod is infested with the sowbugs. They crawled all over the porch and even got into the house. We tried ant powder, roach powder, red pepper, lime, and even arsenate of lead, but none of these things seemed to faze them.

ANSWER: Sowbugs are usually best controlled by use of a poison bran bait. If you will ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on the control of garden insects and diseases you will find complete instructions in this for the making of this bait. It should be scattered in the evening when they do most of their feeding.

QUESTION: For the screen at the back of our lot two years ago, we planted Lombardy poplars five feet apart. These trees are growing at the top and not at the sides. Is it advisable to trim the tops in order to promote a more bushy growth, and if so should the main stem and branches be cut off evenly?

ANSWER: I believe you will find that this Lombardy poplar naturally will send out new shoots from the base, unless they are very much crowded. I doubt very much whether pruning the top or tips of the branches would induce new shoots from the trunk since the action caused by pruning is development of new branches near the tip of the cut branches rather than lower down on that branch or on the trunk.

QUESTION: Last Summer a caterpillar suddenly appeared which not only ate pieces out of the edges of my rhododendron leaves but also ate holes in the middle of them. Can you tell me what to do to control it?

ANSWER: This caterpillar will be very easily controlled by spraying or dusting with arsenate of lead. The only difficulty is that it works rather fast and appears rather suddenly so that you will have to be on the alert to discover when it first starts feeding. In this way you can prevent any serious damage.

QUESTION: Will you please send me a list of your available bulletins and put my name on the mailing list to receive them regularly?

ANSWER: We do not send out any bulletins except upon request for single copies of specific ones, but we have a list of available ones. Any of our bulletins may be secured only from your county agricultural agent whose office will be either in the Court House or Post Office Building.

QUESTION: I would like to get some garden reference book but feel I want something more modern and up-to-date than Bailey's Cyclopaedia of Horticulture.

ANSWER: One of our graduates who is superintendent of a large conservatory in Pittsburgh was in my office just the other day and he was commenting on the fact that of all the supposedly new and rare plants that are brought in to him for identification that he has yet to find one that is not included in Bailey's Cyclopaedia of Horticulture. With the exception of new horticultural varieties such as the Hollywood Star petunia, which would not be included in any book, you will find that the plants we grow, although advertised and featured in catalogs as something brand new, are for the most part plants that have been known and grown for a generation or more. We here at the University find that Bailey's Cyclopaedia completely fills our needs as a reference book for the identification of plants.

COURT DECIDES REED TO MOVE RT. 23 BUILDINGS

Under an order filed in Common Pleas court, Monday, and approved by Judge Phil Henderson of Logan, Robert Reed is granted authority to remove buildings he has placed on property along Route 23 in Harrison township. He is granted until Feb. 25 to remove the buildings.

The entry was in the action brought by Reed against H. O. Bethel, of Columbus, and others. The case entered Common Pleas court when Reed obtained an injunction restraining the execution of a writ of restitution obtained in the court of J. S. Hoover, justice of peace. Bethel had filed an action in forcible entry and detention before the justice of peace. The petition contended the justice of peace did not have jurisdiction in the case. The court held the justice did have jurisdiction.

The action came before Judge Henderson when he was on assignment here.

MOTION TO END TRIAL OF HINES BEFORE COURT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—Tammany Leader James J. Hines' defense against the accusation that he acted as paid "fixer" for the "Dutch" Schultz mob of policy racketeers was opened today with a motion that all of the thirteen counts in the indictment be dismissed.

The motion to throw the case out of court was made before Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr. by Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd P. Stryker.

Hines' first trial ended in a mistrial when Judge Ferdinand Pecora ruled that District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had over-stepped legal bounds in cross-examining a defense witness.

HOUSE, SENATE MEET IN JOINT MEMORIAL RITE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—For the first time in the nation's history, the two houses of congress met in brief session today, expressed official sorrow at the death of Pope Pius XI and then adjourned in tribute to the "Pope of Peace."

Never before has congress honored a spiritual leader in such impressive manner. Only in the case of five rulers—Queen Victoria, King George V and King Edward VII of Great Britain, Albert, King of the Belgians, and the assassinated President Doumergue of France—have the house and senate adjourned in mourning.

The resolutions of adjournment were offered by Senator Wagner of New York in the upper branch of congress and by Rep. Shanley of Connecticut in the house.

In the official expression of congress, President Roosevelt was requested to notify the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Pacelli, of the sympathy of congress for Catholics.

manal system, continue with the administration "ripper" program and pass a school note refunder bill.

Several bills abolishing earmarking of revenues for specific purposes were up for house action after passing unanimously in the senate. Revenues from liquor profits, intangible tax and use tax would go into the general fund under the provisions of three measures.

The Republican-controlled house was expected to rush the job insurance reorganization bill to early passage in order to balk efforts of attorneys for labor interests who planned an attack on the emergency clause.

Rep. W. H. Whetso (D-Laurence) an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, said labor forces planned an appeal to the Ohio supreme court to upset the 90-day clause.

Today was the deadline for offering of bills without suspending rules. Only 130 measures were in the senate hopper and 351 in the house. The house will meet this afternoon and representatives were expected to swell the bill total past 500. The senate meets in skeleton session tonight.

O. S. U. TRUSTEES ORDER INQUIRY

Dargusch Chairman Of Committee To Probe
'Red' Activities

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13—Appointment of a committee to hold a public investigation of recent charges that "un-Americanism" exists on Ohio State university's campus was ordered by the university's board of trustees today. Carlton S. Dargusch, Columbus, the board member who offered the resolution calling for the investigation, was appointed chairman of the committee and H. S. Atkinson and Dr. C. J. Altmaier were selected as other members.

The resolution, adopted unanimously read in part:

"That the committee be instructed by the board of trustees, for its guidance, that the board recognize the fundamental rights of freedom of speech and academic freedom. The board also recognizes that there is a logical and definite distinction between the advocacy of controversial matters as contrasted to the academic consideration of those matters:

"That such investigating committee be authorized and empowered to require the appearance of any person or the production of any records in the possession of any person subject to university discipline and to invite persons not subject to university discipline to appear before the committee in the course of investigation.

"That all hearings be open to the public press in order that the public may be fully advised and that reports of the committee, when submitted to the board, be available to the public."

The committee was ordered to "work in full cooperation with all public officials" and to make its report not later than April 1.

The Franklin county council of the American Legion recently demanded that the General Assembly conduct an investigation of subversive activities at the university. A resolution providing for such an inquiry was introduced in the senate. Another was put in the house hopper.

Dargusch, in a prepared statement, said that although charges of "Red activity" had been officially denied, a "distinct issue had been created."

"I feel," Dargusch said, "that the situation should not be prejudged and recommendations should be made only after full and exhaustive public hearings by a duly appointed committee of the board of trustees."

BUS-VIEW OF FAIR

NEW YORK—In the one hundred 56-passenger intramural buses to be in operation within the grounds of the New York World's Fair 1939, the patrons are to sit back to back along two continuous seats running the full length of the buses. Each of the two lines of passengers will closely face high, wide windows affording unobstructed view of the scene through which they pass.

With Old Chicken Coop For Edifice Neighborhood Gang Finds Church With 12-Year-Old Boy As Minister

The congregation . . . whose ages run from 2 to 16

The Junior Church of Christ at Canton, Pa. . . founded in an abandoned chicken coop.

CANTON, Pa., Feb. 13—"Oh, we knew a lot of kids who didn't go to Sunday school much and we didn't have anything special to do on Sunday afternoons so we decided to start a church."

Thus casually does 12-year-old Charles Rockwell summarize the organization of the Junior Church of Christ in an abandoned chicken coop where between 20 and 30 neighborhood youngsters, ages 2 to 16, gather each Sunday to listen to him preach.

And he's disproved the old saying that a prophet is not without honor except in his own country by enlisting his entire family over the project. Sister Jane, 14, plays the organ which the youthful minister bought with his birthday money, is superintendent of the Sunday school and primary teacher, while brother Jimmie, 9, is janitor, and Edward Payne, a friend, is superintendent of grounds. These three have been Charles' faithful Fridays, but even Fridays sometimes slip up and then the little minister may be found sweeping the church, pinch-hitting at the organ or conscientiously shoveling a path through the snow to the front door.

This has been going on since last March when Charles first conceived the church idea. Blessed with a pair of understanding parents he found no obstacles in his path as he renovated the old coop behind the garage, put up partitions and on the door nailed a cross and a sign announcing to the world that the church was open.

The first Sunday eight youngsters came to hear him preach. Since then the number has steadily increased. One Sunday last summer 40 hot, perspiring children packed the church where an Easter bunny basket serves as a collection plate, a double deck table is a pulpit and the pews are an odd combination of home-made seats, discarded dining room chairs and a bridge set. The young enthusiasts have painted intricate water-color designs on the small pane windows and the resulting soft glow adds to the church-like appearance of the interior.

The Children's Aid society cares for financial matters when the collection money is not enough to buy kerosene for the stove and Sunday school papers. Occasionally a crisis arises and the Rockwell children saddle their pony and sell rides for a penny each as a sort of emergency measure. Last summer the Aid society raised $5 with a fair and bought a church stove with the proceeds.

The Minister

Charles is a perfectly normal American boy who skates and slides all winter and spends his Summers swimming and playing baseball. When he grows up he wants to be an electrician, a carpenter, a farmer, an architect or, maybe, a preacher.

Concerned primarily with behavior, the little minister takes his subjects from the Bible or from the lives of townspeople. He depends on simple, original parables to illustrate his meaning and, without notes, preaches 20-minute sermons that hold the rapt attention of his congregation.

The announcements include such notices as this: "The regular Thursday meeting of the Children's Aid will be held this week."

Choir rehearsal on Saturday. Jane will be glad to work with any of you who can sing or wish to learn how. We want a choir just like any church and all those who come to rehearsal may sing in the choir Sunday.

"Saturday morning we will clean up the church if it doesn't storm. I know you like to play in the snow and if you're having a good time you don't HAVE to come, but I'd like you to."

Sermon Subjects

Is it hard to think up a sermon? The youthful sage admits that it is—"kinda". He has preached on the uses of prayer, the evils of money and drink and once put a good scare into his congregation by elaborating upon the end of the world.

He never tells anyone ahead of time what he is going to preach about. Why? Well, one Sunday he was all set to talk on thankfulness, but the congregation was full of skittish spirits that day and giggles predominated over notes as they sang the opening hymn. Quick to seize the opportunity, Charles changed his subject to reverence, and finally brought his audience to heel with a good, old-fashioned harangue on behavior in church.

Mr. Hamp is seriously ill.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday but the time and place has not been announced. The body was removed to the Hill funeral home in Kingston.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: I have a large pile of rotted manure and would like to know how much copper sulfate I should apply to it to control the fungus in it.

ANSWER: Since I do not see any advantage in stopping the growth of fungi in the manure, I see no reason for applying copper sulfate to it. In addition to this, there would be the danger of the accumulation of copper, producing toxic effects when used in the garden.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me the dates of the big Spring flower shows?

ANSWER: The National Flower Show is at Houston, Texas, Feb. 12 to 19; the International Flower Show at New York, March 13 to 18.

Other big Spring flower shows are at Boston, March 16 to 21; St. Louis, March 18 to 26; Philadelphia, March 20 to 25; Chicago March 25 to April 2, and Detroit, March 25 to April 2.

QUESTION: We have a large sugar maple around 35 years old that has borers working in it around this time of the year. They go almost to the top of the tree and right now it is bleeding profusely. We have several younger maples but they do not have the borer. What measures should we take to get rid of the borers?

ANSWER: Since a number of borers attack the maple, I would not want to tell you what to do for this one until I could at least see a specimen of the damage it is causing. If you care to send in a branch showing the injury, I believe we will be able to identify the borer and make definite recommendations for its control.

QUESTION: Can you send me anything pertaining to the care of roses? Mine have brown spots, the leaves fall off, and bugs as big as bees ruin the bloom.

ANSWER: You will find complete instructions for the control of the black spot on the rose leaves and the rose bugs in our bulletin Garden Roses. You may obtain a copy of this from your county agricultural agent.

QUESTION: Perhaps you can tell me how to eliminate the sowbugs in my yard. We sowed our yard last Fall and it seems as though the soil is infested with the sowbugs. They crawled all over the porch and even got into the house. We tried ant powder, roach powder, red pepper, lime, and even arsenate of lead, but none of these things seemed to faze them.

ANSWER: Sowbugs are usually best controlled by use of a poison bran bait. If you will ask your county agricultural agent for a

COURT DECIDES REED TO MOVE RT. 23 BUILDINGS

Under an order filed in Common Pleas court, Monday, and approved by Judge Phil Henderson of Logan, Robert Reed is granted authority to remove buildings he has placed on property along Route 23 in Harrison township. He is granted until Feb. 25 to remove the buildings.

The entry was in the action brought by Reed against H. O. Bethel, of Columbus, and others. The case entered Common Pleas court when Reed obtained an injunction restraining the execution of a writ of restitution obtained in the court of J. S. Hoover, justice of peace. Bethel had filed an action in forcible entry and detention before the justice of peace. The petition contended the justice of peace did not have jurisdiction in the case. The court held the justice did have jurisdiction.

The action came before Judge Henderson when he was on assignment here.

RALLY OF BOY SCOUTS BEGINS MONDAY AT 7:30

Parents And Friends Of Youths Invited For Program

MANY GAMES PLANNED

Color Movie Of Camping Period Last Summer To Be Shown

Parents and friends are invited to witness the fun and activities this evening at the Boy Scout Week Rally for Pickaway district troops at Memorial Hall, starting at 7:30. The local meeting, the first of its kind to be held here, climaxes the activities of the anniversary week, from Feb. 8 to 14, marking the twenty-ninth birthday of the scout movement in this country.

The program will begin with a roll call of troops in the district by William Radcliff, district Scout commissioner. As each of the troop numbers is called, a color guard will bring the troop colors to the center of the floor where they will remain until all of the nine troops are represented. A brief, formal ceremony will then take place, after which Howard Kautz, field scout executive, will lead the boys in the singing of scout songs.

Games Arranged

During the evening, four competitive games will be played with patrols from each troop taking part. "Skin the snake," "tunnel relay," "flounder race," and "shoe scramble" are the activities which should provide fun and entertainment for both participants and spectators. Scoutmasters and neighborhood commissioners will provide leadership for the game period.

A feature of the program will be of interest to both scouts and their parents will be a showing of the all-color movie taken last summer at the Scout Reservation, local scout camp.

Scouts and visitors from New Holland, Williamsport, Ashville, Commercial Point, and Kingston, as well as Circleville, will attend the Rally. There will be no admission charge, but scout officials have asked that parents accompany youngsters of pre-Scout age.

FARM NEWS

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

The time to prepare brooder houses for the reception of chicks is before the chicks are received. Thorough scrubbing with hot water and soap should precede the use of disinfectants.

Cattle rustling has become a federal problem. The Senate is considering a bill to make the transportation of stolen cattle across state boundaries subject to a fine of $5,000, a five-year term in prison, or both.

Losses caused by internal parasites of sheep can be reduced if the flock is treated before being turned on pasture. Ohio county agricultural agents can give directions for the treatment or can arrange demonstrations of its application.

Tennessee reports an automatic drier. Air in spaces under metal roofs on barns in Tennessee become warm enough to dry hay if the air is piped through the hay and circulated by a power-driven blower. A humidostat turns the blower off when the air collects too much moisture.

Only three states out of the 48 sold more hunting licenses than Ohio in the last year for which records are available. Ohio hunters paid $510,350.93 in license money. There were more than four hunters in Ohio for every one in Texas. Michigan had 30 hunters for every one in Wyoming.

Scrubbing linoleum creates more work because the floor covering becomes more porous under scrubbing and collects dirt faster. All soaps contain some lye and this damages the surface of linoleum. Light applications of good hard wax keep linoleum in the best condition.

LAST VETERAN DIES

MARYSVILLE, Feb. 13—Union county's last Civil War Veteran, who saw service in major battles, Cyrus Stamets, 86, was dead today after a 10 week illness. Stamets was with Sherman on the "march to the sea." He died at his home in nearby Richwood yesterday.

MCCARTHY BUSY

A crack-by-crack description of the battle of quips waged by Eddie Cantor and his stooges, the Mad Russian and Mr. Guffy, will be given by Clem McCarthy, veteran sports columnist and radio announcer, who will be Eddie's guest on the Caravan program tonight at 7:30. Autograph-bound Bert Parks, songstress Kay St. Germaine and Edgar Fairchild's orchestra will be active on the sidelines.

EDNA MAY GUEST

Edna May Oliver, whose horseface is her fortune, will be Bob Hope's guest on his weekly funfest Tuesday at 10 p. m. Addition of this acid-tongued comedienne to the Hope show chalks up another victory for the Patsy Kelly-Glenda Farrell type of woman—the sardonic and lets the hecklers fall where they may. With Hope and his guest star will be Patsy Kelly, Skinnay Ennis, and Jerry Colonna, all regulars on the coast-to-coast show.

Fibber McGee's going to be busier than a sheep dog with fleas come Tuesday. First, he'll guest with Parkyakarkus and Al Jolson on the latter's program at 8:30 p. m., over the coast-to-coast CBS chain and after the last joke has bounced out on the kilocytes, Fibber will hurry over to Hollywood NBC studios for his weekly appearance on his own show, Fibber McGee & Company, heard at 9:30 p. m. over the NBC-Red network.

Madison School Not Yet Ready for Occupancy

By S. D. Fridley
Phone, Ashville, 79

Direct word from one of the Madison township school board members is that the new addition to their school building is not yet ready for occupancy but will be soon. The regular meeting of the Parent-teacher association has been postponed until the new addition of the structure is ready for use. The date will be announced later.

The school board, which has to do with operating the grade schools, will be in session Tuesday evening. The members of the board are C. J. Rokey, president; Peter Johnson, Clayton Baum, Stanley Beckett, Donald Court-right, Earl Essick, clerk.

James Neece told us Saturday that along with the rest who are building dwellings, he is having one built, too. It is to be a six-room structure and located on North Randolph street. Has the foundation already in and every day that it is fit to work, things are moving right along toward a new dwelling, he said. And the George Hardbarger new dwelling, just out of town to the North is well under way toward another one of the new dwellings needed here so badly. Two more are on the "sure list" and an additional two in the "talking stage."

Ashville

Luther Poling and family now occupy rooms at the intersection of Long and Main streets. The laying of the 200-foot water line to the home of Edwin Irwin on the East Side has been completed. Several other water installations are awaiting better weather.

Ashville

Around to the Cooper sick-animal-and-injured-bird hospital Saturday afternoon to see how the crippled quail was getting along. It had been brought in by Cecil Scott after he had rescued it from the claws of a hawk a few days ago. The bird was comfortably resting on the living room mantle and was not disturbed by our entering. Later it flew across the room and alighted on Mr. Cooper who was resting on the lounge. It seemed to know that no harm would come to it. When conditions are favorable within a few days, Mr. Scott will return it to its mates out at the waterworks park. Ample feed is kept there for all the feathered ones and none need go hungry. The Coopers told us of passing the Stage Pond and that about a dozen wild geese were there swimming contentedly about. And on their return from the pond, they saw flying very high, what appeared to be a cloud of birds, ducks they think, and in this flock there seemed to be thousands. Had never seen anything like it, the Coopers said. They are quite familiar with wild fowl life in the Canadian lakes, making frequent trips there. And while telling about these birds, it reminds us that it is about time for the crows to be holding their annual convention up at the Peters and Tegardin farms near the Madison school house.

Ashville

According to reports from there, both Mrs. Charles Fortner and Howard Sampson in Columbus hospitals, are "getting along fine."

THREE PERSONS HURT IN WRECK AT CLARKSBURG

Virgil Diltz In Hospital With Dislocated Hip, Other Injuries

TRUCK-AUTO HIT HEADON

Route 277, Just North Of Village, Scene Of Collision

Three persons were hurt Saturday about 2 p. m. in an auto-truck collision about one and a fourth miles north of Clarksburg on Route 277.

Virgil Diltz, 47, mineral products salesman of Circleville Route 4, suffered a dislocated right hip, cuts and bruises about the face and body. He is in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus. Chester R. Davis, 34, of Dayton, driver of the truck, and Wilbur Blakesley, 36, also of Dayton, owner of the truck, were treated for scalp lacerations by Dr. G. W. Cooper, of Clarksburg.

State highway patrolmen reported that the auto driven by Diltz and the truck had a head-on collision. Damage to the auto was estimated at $350, and to the truck, $150. The accident was just south of the intersection of the Clarksburg-New Holland pike with Route 277.

Mr. Diltz was first removed to Berger hospital, then taken to Mt. Carmel hospital. It was first believed his hip was fractured. He was treated by Dr. V. D. Kerns.

R. J. Reynolds, 40, of Columbus, was treated in Chillicothe, Saturday afternoon, for injuries received when his car and a truck collided at the south end of the Deer creek bridge on Route 104.

AT THE CLIFTONA

It's to the principality of "Push-talnick"—land of roses and beautiful girls—that Bing Crosby takes us in his latest comedy offering, "Paris Honeymoon," which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

After having taken us to Waukegan, to the wide, open spaces, West Coast race tracks, college campi and where not, in search of romance and melody, Bing finally goes abroad—as a young American millionaire in search of a quiet old castle where he and his bride-to-be can enjoy a peaceful honeymoon. He finds the castle, with the aid of Akim Tamiroff, mayor, factotum, and operator of the sole slot machine in "Push-talnick"—but he also finds Francisca Gaal, a peasant girl, with whom he promptly proceeds to fall in love.

The big cast also boasts of Edward Everett Horton, Ben Blue, Keith Kenneth, Greta Meyer and many other noted comedians, while the songwriting team of Robin and Ranger come through with four new melodies—"You're A Sweet Little Headache," "I Have Eyes," "The Funny Old Hills" and "Joobalai" to help keep the pace.

AT THE GRAND

Tail Spin, a smashing melodrama of adventure starring Alice

Faye, Constance Bennett and Nancy Kelly, roared across the screen of the Grand Theatre yesterday and left a large audience still talking as it filed out.

Telling the story of three courageous women who fly, Tail Spin is the first attempt Hollywood has made to focus its cameras on the women of the sky. And a magnificent job has been done.

Containing some of the most remarkable flying ever seen on the screen, it portrays the thrills that come with their split-second escapes and the heart-throbs behind their spectacular lives.

AT THE CIRCLE

Continuing its policy of two good first-run features, the Circle program which opened Sunday to run today and Tuesday proved to be all that, any seeker of entertainment could ask. "Little Miss Thoroughbred", the number one hit, stars the new child discovery, Janet Chapman, John Littel, Ann Sheridan and Frank McHugh. The story concerns an orphan who can pick the winners for her race track foster-daddy. Second feature is Tex Ritter's new musical western, "Sundown on the Trail."

RALLY OF BOY SCOUTS BEGINS MONDAY AT 7:30

Parents And Friends Of Youths Invited For Program

MANY GAMES PLANNED

Color Movie Of Camping Period Last Summer To Be Shown

Parents and friends are invited to witness the fun and activities this evening at the Boy Scout Week Rally for Pickaway district troops at Memorial Hall, starting at 7:30. The local meeting, the first of its kind to be held here, climaxes the activities of the anniversary week, from Feb. 8 to 14, marking the twenty-ninth birthday of the scout movement in this country.

The program will begin with a roll call of troops. In the district by William Radcliff, district Scout commissioner. As each of the troop numbers is called, a color guard will bring the troop colors to the center of the floor where they will remain until all of the nine troops are represented. A brief, formal ceremony will then take place, after which Howard Kautz, field scout executive, will lead the boys in the singing of scout songs.

Games Arranged
During the evening, four competitive games will be played with patrols from each troop taking part. "Skin the snake", "tunnel relay", "flounder race", and "shoe scramble" are the activities which should provide fun and entertainment for both participants and spectators. Scoutmasters and neighborhood commissioners will provide leadership for the game period.

A feature of the program will be of interest to both scouts and their parents will be a showing of the all-color movie taken last summer at the Scout Reservation, local scout camp.

Scouts and visitors from New Holland, Williamsport, Ashville, Commercial Point, and Kingston, as well as Circleville, will attend the Rally. There will be no admission charge, but scout officials have asked that parents accompany youngsters of pre-Scout age.

FARM NEWS

Brief Items of Interest to Pickaway Farmers

The time to prepare brooder houses for the reception of chicks is before the chicks are received. Thorough scrubbing with hot water and soap should precede the use of disinfectants.

Cattle rustling has become a federal problem. The Senate is considering a bill to make the transportation of stolen cattle across state boundaries subject to a fine of $5,000, a five-year term in prison, or both.

Losses caused by internal parasites of sheep can be reduced if the flock is treated before being turned on pasture. Ohio county agricultural agents can give directions for the treatment or can arrange demonstrations of its application.

Tennessee reports an automatic drier. Air in spaces under metal roofs on barns in Tennessee become warm enough to dry hay if the air is piped through the hay and circulated by a power-driven blower. A humidostat turns the blower off when the air collects too much moisture.

Only three states out of the 48 sold more hunting licenses than Ohio in the last year for which records are available. Ohio hunters paid $510,350.93 in license money. There were more than four hunters in Ohio for every one in Texas. Michigan had 30 hunters for every one in Wyoming.

Scrubbing linoleum creates more work because the floor covering becomes more porous under scrubbing and collects dirt faster. All soaps contain some lye and this damages the surface of linoleum. Light applications of good hard wax keep linoleum in the best condition.

LAST VETERAN DIES

MARYSVILLE, Feb. 13—Union county's last Civil War Veteran, who saw service in major battles, Cyrus Stamets, 86, was dead today after a 10 week illness. Stamets was with Sherman on the "march to the sea." He died at his home in nearby Richwood yesterday.

Around to the Cooper sick-animal-and-injured-bird hospital Saturday afternoon to see how the crippled quail was getting along. It had been brought in by Cecil Scott after he had rescued it from the claws of a hawk a few days ago. The bird was comfortably resting on the living room mantle and was not disturbed by our entering. Later it flew across the room and alighted on Mr. Cooper who was resting on the lounge. It seemed to know that no harm would come to it. When conditions are favorable within a few days, Mr. Scott will return it to its mates out at the waterworks park. Ample feed is kept there for all the feathered ones and none need go hungry. The Coopers told us of passing the Stage Pond and that about a dozen wild geese were there swimming contentedly about. And on their return from the pond, they saw flying very high, what appeared to be a cloud of birds, ducks they think, and in this flock there seemed to be thousands. Had never seen anything like it, the Coopers said. They are quite familiar with wild fowl life in the Canadian lakes, making frequent trips there. And while telling about these birds, it reminds us that it is about time for the crows to be holding their annual convention up at the Peters and Teegardin farms near the Madison school house.

TRUCK-AUTO HIT HEADON

Route 277, Just North Of Village, Scene Of Collision

Three persons were hurt Saturday about 2 p. m. in an auto-truck collision about one and a fourth miles north of Clarksburg on Route 277.

Virgil Diltz, 47, mineral products salesman of Circleville Route 4, suffered a dislocated right hip, cuts and bruises about the face and body. He is in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus. Chester R. Davis, 34, of Dayton, driver of the truck, and Wilbur Blakesley, 36, also of Dayton, owner of the truck, were treated for scalp lacerations by Dr. G. W. Cooper, of Clarksburg.

State highway patrolmen reported that the auto driven by Diltz and the truck had a head-on collision. Damage to the auto was estimated at $350, and to the truck, $150. The accident was just south of the intersection of the Clarksburg-New Holland pike with Route 277.

Mr. Diltz was first removed to Berger hospital, then taken to Mt. Carmel hospital. It was first believed his hip was fractured. He was treated by Dr. V. D. Kerns.

R. J. Reynolds, 40, of Columbus, was treated in Chillicothe, Saturday afternoon, for injuries received when his car and a truck collided at the south end of the Deer creek bridge on Route 104.

LIFE IN JAPAN
THE war isn't any fun in Japan, either. An American newspaper man in Tokyo tells of these changes.
The Japanese girls are not allowed to wear bright kimonos of American material any more; they must wear gray and black.
There is no dancing at hotels.
Permanent waves and cosmetics are banned, also foreign food and liquors.
"Staple fiber", a manufactured material, replaces cotton and wool. Bamboo utensils are substituted for copper and iron kettles. Iron doorknobs are stolen at night, also manhole covers.
Long funeral processions carry the ashes of dead soldiers through the streets. Nearly every family has relatives killed in the present war. The people wouldn't mind fighting Russians, but resent having to fight Chinese coolies. The war is especially unpopular among university students.
No movies are to be seen except old ones. Baseball is frowned on and jazz is forbidden. The government insists on a "spiritual renovation," and the people resent it.
Business men are almost unanimously opposed to war, because it interferes with business.

THE LITTLE DOC'S PAST
DR. DAFOE, known throughout the world for his connection with the Dionne quintuplets, had a past, and a very fine one. His medical career began long before the world's most famous sisters were born.
In a new book, "The Little Doc", Frazier Hunt pays due attention to that past. Dr. Dafoe's father was a physician and had ambitions for his son. Although the young man did pretty well in medical school and might have launched into a good practice in some city, he preferred to remain in rural Canada. For quite a period of his life his income did not come from his patients, most of whom were poor and paid him little or nothing, but from the government which paid him for medical services to those still poorer.
Dr. Dafoe did a job during the war which might well have received wide public attention. He covered 400 square miles of territory all through the flu epidemic and took care of more than 1,000 cases. He lost just two. Many urban centers, with far better facilities for treatment, fell short of that score.

World At A Glance

Deplorable as Chile's earthquake was, it did come at a handy time to solidify Latin-American sentiment back of Uncle Sam's western hemispherical good neighborly policy.
The United States' reaction of sympathy and helpfulness was just what might have been expected, but it was a very prompt reaction, all the same, and a very liberal one. Naturally the "Chilenos" appreciate it. Furthermore it served as a potent hint to the other southerly republics that no great country elsewhere is so well situated, geographically and financially, to lend aid to any of them, in time of emergency, as is Yankee-land.
Germany and Italy, our chief rivals in their part of the world, are too far away to accomplish much in the face of a capital disaster on our half of the globe. They haven't the resources, either. One hears recognition of this fact reflected from all the Latin-American embassies and legations in Washington. Of course no European or Asiatic government neglected to inform Chile how sorry it was, but that was all the good it did for the sufferers. The U.S.A. sent more than regrets; it rushed money, medicines, men and relief of all sorts.
Chile is an extremely poor republic, utterly unequipped to cope with so sudden and formidable a catastrophe. The quake victims' sufferings were terrible, unavoidably, but Yankee assistance did something toward taking the curse off, and all Latin America knows it.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.
FRANCE, ITALY, NEAR SHOWDOWN
WASHINGTON — It is now agreed by most diplomatic experts that nothing short of a miracle can stave off a showdown between Italy and France this Spring. Such a showdown probably will result in war.
Mussolini has told Hitler that it was now his turn to get something out of the Berlin-Rome axis, and Hitler, in his last speech, made it clear that he had given his assent.
Meanwhile the temper of the French people has changed remarkably since Munich. A sort of fatalism exists in France, a belief that war is inevitable and it might as well come now rather than later. This was not the sentiment which prevailed two months ago, when France would have made certain concessions to Italy in North Africa, though not at the pistol point.
The events which have caused this change are important. They constitute the unwritten diplomatic history of Europe since Munich.
First incident in the chain of events occurred on November 28 in Rome. Rumors had cropped up with increasing frequency that when the Italian Chamber convened on November 30, it would stage a demonstration for the annexation of Tunis.
"WE WANT TUNIS!"
Finally the rumors became so persistent that the French Ambassador, M. Francois-Poncet, could not ignore them, and on November 28 he asked for an interview with Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Ambassador inquired of Ciano regarding the status of French-Italian relations, and received a polite reply that the only "wall" between them was Spain.
Francois-Poncet replied that the Spanish Loyalists appeared near defeat, so that wall soon would be removed. Meanwhile, he said, France had adhered very strictly to her non-intervention policy.
The Ambassador next asked Ciano's view of the Mussolini-Laval agreement which ceded to Italy certain strategic areas around Djibuti, together with certain rights for Italians in Tunis. Ciano replied that Italy was merely waiting for France to ratify the agreement.
Francois-Poncet then pressed him to see if there was anything further troubling French-Italian relations. He received a very cordial negative.
So the French Ambassador walked into the Italian Chamber two days later completely confident that no demonstration over Tunis was to mar Italo-French relations, only to be greeted, shortly after taking his seat in the diplomatic gallery, with cries of "Tunisia! Tunisia!"
At first Ambassador Francois-Poncet pretended to be deaf. Finally as the shouting continued, he leaned over to his colleagues and asked what the shouting was about. When they told him, he reached for his hat and walked out.

World At A Glance

To be sure, Latin folk east of the Andes are little subject to earthquakes, but they can have other varieties of large-scale misfortunes, and Uncle Sam has had a chance to figure as a valuable friend in need whenever required.
Oh, it was an awful earthquake, but, if there had to be one, it wasn't untimely, Pan-Americanly speaking.
Coming after that Lima conference, in its way it could not have been improved on.
NAZI-FASCISTS SQUELCHED
Although eastern South America does not have earthquakes, it does have totalitarian activities.
One of these has just been squelched by President Vargas of Brazil, with the arrest of Plinio Salgado, who was trying to stir up an Integral Action revolution in Sao Paulo. Sao Paulo, though not Brazil's capital (which is Rio de Janeiro) is the republic's principal city (about the size of Chicago), and Sao Paulo state is a big enough tail to wag the bulk of the Brazilian dog. Therefore a Sao Paulo rebellion would be bad business for the whole country. The Integral Action party is partly Fascist, partly Nazi. But it is mainly Nazi, because southern Brazil (Sao Paulo) is predominantly German. Thus this thing had it eventuated, would have given Germany a dangerous Brazilian foothold—dangerous from the standpoint of the United States.
President Vargas is pretty much a dictator himself. However, he is

Whooping Cough Mistaken in Adults
BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE ARE in the midst of an epidemic of whooping cough of widespread distribution on the North American continent. I heard of many cases in New York and when I visited the Pacific coast there it was also.
There are a great many cases among adults. Nothing is strange about that because in all epidemics of children's diseases adults are likely to be sporadically affected, but what is strange is that so many cases of whooping cough in adults go unrecognized. The cases are called la grippe or bronchitis and drag along until somebody hears the patient give a whoop and that reveals the diagnosis.
The lack of recognition comes up very naturally. The doctor sees the patient only once perhaps and finds a cough and a temperature. It isn't natural to think of whooping cough in a strapping husky of 25. And the "cold" drags along. Nobody thinks to tell the doctor about the vomiting or the whooping, and the condition may become rather serious, to say nothing of the spread of the disease from these wandering, unrecognized carriers.
Case of Interesse
To show how real this situation may be, I know of an interne in a hospital, a grown man of 30, who came down with a cough. He was surrounded by doctors and nurses, but nobody realized what was the matter with him until he visited a friend's house where he fell into a paroxysm of coughing, strangled, gagged and threw up. Then the old grandmother of the household exclaimed, "Heaven bless us! the lad's got whooping cough."
I know of another case in a young lady of 18 whose mother insisted she had whooping cough but two doctors stoutly maintained she did not. A blood count showed the doctors were wrong and the mother right.
The disease may run its course without the typical whoop ever being heard. So a cough not accompanied by fever (of any high degree) or signs recognizable by the stethoscope on the chest, which steadily increases in severity for two weeks in spite of treatment, and which occurs chiefly at night, is always suspicious. A blood count is a great help in diagnosis up to the period of convalescence.
Treating Adult
In treatment for the adult case, the cough should be stringently controlled by sedatives. Nutrition must be maintained as the vomiting may cause weakness and considerable loss of weight. The vomiting is not accompanied by nausea; it is simply a reflex gagging due to the rosy mucus in the throat, and after every vomiting more food should be forced. The best drug is still probably antipyrine, which in adults assumes the role of a specific. But the most important thing is to prevent the adult whooping cough patient from spreading the disease to others.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Fan Bacteriologist: "What causes a gnawing or growling sensation in the stomach? It becomes embarrassing. I eat sufficiently and the elimination is good. Could it be a nerve reaction?"
Answer:—The sensation you describe corresponds very closely to acid dyspepsia. If it is that, it is easily relieved by doses of alkalis, such as sodium bicarbonate, half a teaspoonful with a glass of water.
W. H. S.: "Is the X-ray technique successful in the dislodgment of adhesions of one or two years' standing? Can X-ray photographs be used to measure the extent and progress of adhesions?"
Answer:—The X-ray does not remove adhesions nor affect their removal in any way. Adhesions in the abdomen can only be detected by a diagnostic X-ray.
EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reining Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diarrhea," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

If it can be read clearly as higher than his lowest, it generally asks for a repeat of the same suit. DEATH AT THE MANOR
BY M. E. CORNE
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FIFTY
MAC CONTINUED his explanation of the murder.
"I don't know when or where Horace evolved his murder scheme. We do know that he had been studying poisons, as witness the volume in the library. Evolve it he did, however—and the cleverest part of the whole business to me is the way in which he secured the stuff. Sending his own wife after it!"
I interrupted: "How did he force her to buy the poison?"
"He didn't force her, Elsie. You see, it was a usual arrangement, Horace sending his wife for poisons. The clerk at the drug store told us about that. Mrs. Horace was in the habit of making weekly shopping trips to Columbus. What was more natural than that Horace would request her to do his shopping for him? It was his habit to make a list of his laboratory needs, and for his wife to have these prescriptions filled for him in the city."
"How—how diabolical!" I exclaimed, horrified.
"On, it probably started out innocently enough," Mac assured me. "It only ended badly. Well, so much for the motive. Horace wanted money; he wanted Della. He murdered his mother. And he murdered his wife. He couldn't permit her to live, she knew too much. Besides, he wanted Della at once, before Reginald should get her."
"And so," he concluded, "we have the motive. We have the poison. That leaves the method."
"Yes, what was the method?" Phil queried eagerly.
Mac began: "Horace decided for obvious reasons to commit his crime on the night of the ball. To do this he must set the scene. He must know to the minute when his mother would appear in the salon; and he must arrange to have her use a certain drier to dry her hair. Thus the midnight visit to the salon. He was scouting, so to speak."
I put in: "Then it was he who upset the chair?"
"Yes, it took me hours of figuring to hit upon the reason for that excursion. It wasn't until I glanced through the appointment book in the lobby that I saw the light. He had to find out the exact time of his mother's appointment. He couldn't afford to murder the wrong party."
"Where did he get the key?" I asked.
Mac made a wry face. "It seems that the good Greely mislaid her keys and mysteriously found them again."
"I'll be damned!" exclaimed Phil. "Why didn't she mention the fact?"
Mac snorted. "Why didn't she mention a lot of facts? Greely may be an excellent housekeeper, but she'll never make a detective! If she had opened her mouth concerning a number of things, we might have reached the truth sooner. But I'll explain that later on. To continue with the method: Elsie played into the murderer's hands by dining downstairs the evening of the first murder. However, I assure you, you remained in your room," he turned to me, "Horace would have invented some excuse to get you out of the way. So don't let that worry you!"
"During Elsie's absence Horace limmed the three driers and attached his poison in the tissue to the fourth one. The stage was set! The murder machine was in order!"

"And I?" I stammered — "I threw the switch!"
"You threw the switch, yes," Mac affirmed. "And then something else happened that worked to the murderer's advantage. You left the salon for half an hour!"
I frowned: "I never did get the straight of that business. Why did Mr. Horace ask me to deny my absence?"
"I wanted it to appear that his mother died in your presence. He was being cautious. Of course he didn't think that her death would be pronounced other than normal; but he evidently thought far enough ahead to grasp that your absence, were it known, might create a question in the minds of the police. In other words, the fact that Mrs. Witherspoon died in your presence, before your very eyes, was testimony enough that she had met with no foul play. You could swear that no one aside from yourself had touched the old lady. On the other hand, should your absence come to light, Horace could insist that the old lady had been poisoned during your absence from the salon."
"I see!" I said. "How hard he was! He came to watch his mother die!"
"I suppose," Mac theorized, "that he was a little nervous in spite of his elaborate precautions. He had to see for himself how his plans were working. He could not know, of course, that his entrance was a signal for you to cut his victim's finger and so set, conclusively, the time of her death."
I drew a long breath. "And Mrs. Horace?"
"Mrs. Horace had to be gotten rid of at once. She knew about the purchase of the cyanide. In case Mrs. Witherspoon's death was questioned—well—Horace couldn't afford to take a chance on his wife putting two and two together. I rather believe she suspected him, anyway, of the arsenic poisoning, I mean, judging from her actions."
"But how," I wanted to know, "did he mean to explain her death? She wasn't in ill health?"
"We can't be certain about that, Elsie. I'm of the opinion he meant to suggest suicide. He had no reason to believe we would ever discover the adhesive and the tissues."
"And it was he who suggested that she have a permanent?"
"Yes. Daphne has admitted it. She was present at the time. Mrs. Horace, it seems, was aware of her husband's infatuation for Della Craig. In her way she loved Horace; at any rate, she wanted to keep him badly enough to decide to go in for beauty treatments at her age. Horace admired Della's hair; he remarked about its beauty in his wife's presence and suggested, quite casually, that a permanent wave might improve her own straggling hair. She made an appointment with you and told him of it."
"When you, Elsie, described Daphne's strange behavior at Ellis' question concerning the permanent, I immediately suspected the cause. Horace was the only person who could have made such a suggestion with the certainty that it would be carried out."
I sighed. "Poor woman! What a life—and what a death!"
Mac continued: "I was baffled

when we found no second tissue following her death. I have recently learned that our mutual friend and helper, Mrs. Greely, carried it from the salon. She found it on the floor and put it into her apron pocket; later she burned it in her room when it fell out of her clothes while she was undressing. I think Horace meant to destroy both tissues, but luck there was against him. When the drier hoods were lifted, the air took them from their fastenings and blew them away. He did remove the adhesive, and he counted on the tissues having no meaning for anyone if they were found."
I said weakly: "It's really very simple when you know, isn't it?"
Mac grinned. "Daphne and Richard created a good many tangles." I recalled a forgotten perplexity. "Why did Mr. Richard insist that his mother's death was murder? He must have known that the police in the house would complicate matters for himself."
"I think he had a guilty conscience, Elsie. Perhaps, too, he had ideas of his own concerning his parents. Who knows? I'm quite certain that Horace insisted that it was not murder to protect Richard as much as himself. As soon as he learned of the missing emeralds he had a hunch who had stolen them. He knew more about that young man's affairs than Richard imagined."
"Mac!" Phil said. "One thing worries me! How did you know about the telegram Richard sent to Benson?"
Mac grinned wickedly. "Benson, my lad, if I could claim omniscient powers I would! However, my conscience forces me to admit that the gods who guide detectives stationed me in the hotel lobby the morning young Witherspoon came in to send his wire. Naturally, I didn't attach any importance to the incident at the time. It was only later that I recalled how very nervous and upset the lad had been."
I had a further question: "What about the electrician and the second phone call?"
"Another oversight on Greely's part. She neglected to mention that she had reported the broken drier to her employer. Naturally, she didn't suspect him. And naturally he did not want the driers immediately repaired. He had further use for them."
"And it was he who hid the cyanide in the powder box?"
"It must have been, Elsie." And I lapsed into silence.
The detective rose and stretched his long arms. Thus ended the tale, children. No more rabbits. Tomorrow I go back to Chicago, where crime is open and above-board. Coming to town, Benson?"
Phil gave me a long look. He shook his head. "Not now, Mac. I have a loose end or two to tie before I leave."
Mac McIntyre smiled broadly; his blue eyes twinkled. "Remember what I always told you, Elsie," he said cryptically. "So long, red-head!"
"So long, Mac."
The door closed behind him for the last time. I got up and went to the window. It had stopped raining. The moon sailed a silver sickle in the sky. I turned. The moon was in the room. It was in Phil's eyes! I often think of that moon as I bustle around our Chicago apartment waiting for Phil to come home to dinner.

Homer Reber Assumes Task As Pomona Master

Saltcreek Wins Grange Prize For Year

Homer Reber, Nebraska grange, was installed as master of Pomona grange at the quarterly meeting, Saturday, at Walnut school. Kenneth Wertman served as installing officer.

Others taking chairs at this session were Orley Judy, Saltcreek Valley, overseer; Mrs. Turney Glick, Washington, lecturer; Hoyt Timmons, Logan Elm, steward; Joseph Peters, Nebraska, assistant steward; Mrs. Clara Dresbach, Logan Elm, chaplain; Ira Scothorn, Scioto Valley, treasurer; C. E. Dick, Scioto, secretary; C. E. Beers, Scioto, gate-keeper; Miss Glendal Dick, Scioto, Ceres; Miss Mary Elizabeth Miller, Scioto Valley, Pomona; Miss Virginia Dreisbach, Logan Elm, Flora; Miss Mary Fraumfelter, Saltcreek Valley, lady assistant steward; Howard Noecker, Scioto Valley, member of the executive committee; the other two members are Ira Fisher of Scioto Valley and C. M. Beatty of Scioto.

Assisting Mr. Wertman in the installation ceremonies were Mrs. M. M. Bowman, master; Mrs. Loring Leist, chaplain; Miss Mildred Wertman, marshal; M. M. Bowman, regalia bearer; Loring Leist, emblem bearer; Miss Ruby Harris, soloist; and Miss Dorothy Glick, pianist. Mr. Wertman and his assistants are members of Washington subordinate grange.

The results in the year contest of the subordinate granges for the best paid-up membership, best attendance at the various programs and the best attendance at Pomona, were announced at the session, Saltcreek Valley winning the first prize of $10 and Nebraska, the second of $5.

Because of the time required for the installation ceremonies, the afternoon program was omitted. The morning session was devoted to year reports of Pomona grange.

Nebraska grange was in charge of the entertainment for the affair, serving lunch to more than 200. Flowers and valentines were used in decorating the attractive tables.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, February 13

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a definite swing away from long static and unproductive conditions, with a pronounced upturn to all property values and lagging investments. While this promises a stabilization of the fortunes, there also are snares and pitfalls to be prepared for by vigilance and sagacity.

Those who birthday it is may anticipate a trend away from stagnations and crystallization of the affairs. There is definite promise of an up-swing in investments and property values, with fortunes gaining much stability and security. However, there are portents of sinister omen through fraud, cheating, treachery and collusion.

Isn't it marvelous how the intricate machine of commerce constantly gathers the necessities, conveniences and luxuries of life from the four corners of the earth and puts them down right here in our home town?

Have you ever stopped to think what an important part ADVERTISING plays in making all this possible?

Without advertising, no merchant could afford to risk a large investment in merchandise — and wait and wait till some chance customer happened in. . . . Without advertising, you would be unaware of the many lovely, useful, needful things assembled in the stores for your convenience. . . . Without advertising, finding what you wanted at a price you could afford would be a matter of luck or of patient plodding from store to store.

Mass production and sales volume—through advertising — have brought to the American people an ease and comfort of living that would have been beyond the wildest dream of kinds of old.

LIFE IN JAPAN

THE war isn't any fun in Japan, either. An American newspaper man in Tokyo tells of these changes.

The Japanese girls are not allowed to wear bright kimonos of American material any more; they must wear gray and black.

There is no dancing at hotels. Permanent waves and cosmetics are banned, also foreign food and liquors.

"Staple fiber", a manufactured material, replaces cotton and wool. Bamboo utensils are substituted for copper and iron kettles. Iron doorknobs are stolen at night, also manhole covers.

Long funeral processions carry the ashes of dead soldiers through the streets. Nearly every family has relatives killed in the present war. The people wouldn't mind fighting Russians, but resent having to fight Chinese coolies. The war is especially unpopular among university students.

No movies are to be seen except old ones. Baseball is frowned on and jazz is forbidden. The government insists on a "spiritual renovation," and the people resent it.

Business men are almost unanimously opposed to war, because it interferes with business.

THE LITTLE DOC'S PAST

DR. DAFOE, known throughout the world for his connection with the Dionne quintuplets, had a past, and a very fine one. His medical career began long before the world's most famous sisters were born.

In a new book, "The Little Doc", Frazier Hunt pays due attention to that past. Dr. Dafoe's father was a physician and had ambitions for his son. Although the young man did pretty well in medical school and might have launched into a good practice in some city, he preferred to remain in rural Canada. For quite a period of his life his income did not come from his patients, most of whom were poor and paid him little or nothing, but from the government which paid him for medical services to those still poorer.

Dr. Dafoe did a job during the war which might well have received wide public attention. He covered 400 square miles of territory all through the flu epidemic and took care of more than 1,000 cases. He lost just two. Many urban centers, with far better facilities for treatment, fell short of that score.

World At A Glance

Deplorable as Chile's earthquake was, it did come at a handy time to solidify Latin-American sentiment of Uncle Sam's western hemispherical good neighborly policy.

The United States' reaction of sympathy and helpfulness was just what might have been expected, but it was a very prompt reaction, all the same, and a very liberal one. Naturally the "Chilenos" appreciate it. Furthermore it served as a potent hint to the other southerly republics that no great country elsewhere is so well situated, geographically and financially, to lend aid to any of them, in time of emergency, as is Yankee-land.

Germany and Italy, our chief rivals in their part of the world, are too far away to accomplish much in the face of a capital disaster on our half of the globe. They haven't the resources, either. One hears recognition of this fact reflected from all the Latin-American embassies and legations in Washington. Of course no European or Asiatic government neglected to inform Chile how sorry it was, but that was all the good it did for the sufferers. The U.S.A. sent more than regrets; it rushed money, medicines, men and relief of all sorts.

Chile is an extremely poor republic, utterly unequipped to cope with so sudden and formidable a catastrophe. The quake victims' sufferings were terrible, unavoidably, but Yankee assistance did something toward taking the curse off, and all Latin America knows it.

To be sure, Latin folk east of the Andes are little subject to earthquakes, but they can have other varieties of large-scale misfortunes, and Uncle Sam has had a chance to figure as a valuable friend in need whenever required.

Oh, it was an awful earthquake, but, if there had to be one, it wasn't untimely, Pan-Americanly speaking.

Coming after that Lima conference, in its way it could not have been improved on.

NAZI-FASCISTS SQUELCHED

Although eastern South America does not have earthquakes, it does have totalitarian activities.

One of these has just been squelched by President Vargas of Brazil, with the arrest of Plinio Salgado, who was trying to stir up an Integral Action revolution in Sao Paulo. Sao Paulo, though not Brazil's capital (which is Rio de Janeiro) is the republic's principal city (about the size of Chicago), and Sao Paulo state is a big enough tail to wag the bulk of the Brazilian dog. Therefore a Sao Paulo rebellion would be bad business for the whole country. The Integral Action party is partly Fascist, partly Nazi. But it is mainly Nazi, because southern Brazil (Sao Paulo) is predominantly German. Thus this thing had it eventuated, would have given Germany a dangerous Brazilian foothold—dangerous from the standpoint of the United States.

President Vargas is pretty much a dictator himself. However, he is

FRANCE, ITALY, NEAR SHOWDOWN

WASHINGTON — It is now agreed by most diplomatic experts that nothing short of a miracle can stave off a showdown between Italy and France this Spring. Such a showdown probably will result in war.

Mussolini has told Hitler that it was now his turn to get something out of the Berlin-Rome axis, and Hitler, in his last speech, made it clear that he had given his assent.

Meanwhile the temper of the French people has changed remarkably since Munich. A sort of fatalism exists in France, a belief that war is inevitable and it might as well come now rather than later. This was not the sentiment which prevailed two months ago, when France would have made certain concessions to Italy in North Africa, though not at the pistol point.

The events which have caused this change are important. They constitute the unwritten diplomatic history of Europe since Munich.

First incident in the chain of events occurred on November 28 in Rome. Rumors had cropped up with increasing frequency that when the Italian Chamber convened on November 30, it would stage a demonstration for the annexation of Tunis.

"WE WANT TUNIS!"

Finally the rumors became so persistent that the French Ambassador, M. Francois-Poncet, could not ignore them, and on November 28 he asked for an interview with Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Ambassador inquired of Ciano regarding the status of French-Italian relations, and received a polite reply that the only "wall" between them was Spain.

Francois-Poncet replied that the Spanish Loyalists appeared near defeat, so that wall soon would be removed. Meanwhile, he said, France had adhered very strictly to her non-intervention policy.

The Ambassador next asked Ciano's view of the Mussolini-Laval agreement which ceded to Italy certain strategic areas around Djibuti, together with certain rights for Italians in Tunis. Ciano replied that Italy was merely waiting for France to ratify the agreement.

Francois-Poncet then pressed him to see if there was anything further troubling French-Italian relations. He received a very cordial negative.

So the French Ambassador walked into the Italian Chamber two days later completely confident that no demonstration over Tunis was to mar Italo-French relations, only to be greeted, shortly after taking his seat in the diplomatic gallery, with cries of "Tunisia! Tunisia!"

At first Ambassador Francois-Poncet pretended to be deaf. Finally as the shouting continued, he leaned over to his colleagues and asked what the shouting was about. When they told him, he reached for his hat and walked out.

Whooping Cough Mistaken in Adults

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE ARE in the midst of an epidemic of whooping cough of widespread distribution on the North American continent. I heard of many cases in New York and when I visited the Pacific coast there it was also.

There are a great many cases among adults. Nothing is strange about that because in all epidemics of children's diseases adults are likely to be sporadically affected, but what is strange is that so many cases of whooping cough in adults go on unrecognized. The cases are called la grippe or bronchitis and drag along until somebody hears the patient give a whoop and that reveals the diagnosis.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The lack of recognition comes up very naturally. The doctor sees the patient only once perhaps and finds a cough and a temperature. It isn't natural to think of whooping cough in a strapping husky of 25. And the "cold" drags along. Nobody thinks to tell the doctor about the vomiting or the whooping, and the condition may become rather serious, to say nothing of the spread of the disease from these wandering, unrecognized carriers.

Case of Interne

To show how real this situation may be, I know of an interne in a hospital, a grown man of 30, who came down with a cough. He was surrounded by doctors and nurses, but nobody realized what was the matter with him until he visited a friend's house where he fell into a paroxysm of coughing, strangled, gagged and threw up. Then the old grandmother of the household exclaimed, "Heaven bless us! the lad's got whooping cough."

I know of another case in a young lady of 18 whose mother insisted she had whooping cough but two doctors stoutly maintained she did not. A blood count showed the doctors were wrong and the mother right.

The disease may run its course without the typical whoop ever being heard. So a cough not accompanied by fever (of any high degree) or signs recognizable by the stethoscope on the chest, which steadily increases in severity for two weeks in spite of treatment, and which occurs chiefly at night, is always suspicious. A blood count is a great help in diagnosis up to the period of convalescence.

Treating Adult

In treatment for the adult case, the cough should be stringently controlled by sedatives. Nutrition must be maintained as the vomiting may cause weakness and considerable loss of weight. The vomiting is not accompanied by nausea; it is simply a reflex gagging due to the rosy mucus in the throat, and after every vomiting more food should be forced. The best drug is still probably antipyrine, which in adults assumes the role of a specific. But the most important thing is to prevent the adult whooping cough patient from spreading the disease to others.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Fan Bacteriologist: "What causes a gnawing or growling sensation in the stomach? It becomes embarrassing. I eat sufficiently and the elimination is good. Could it be a nerve reaction?"

Answer—The sensation you describe corresponds very closely to acid dyspepsia. If it is that, it is easily relieved by doses of alkalis, such as sodium bicarbonate, half a teaspoonful with a glass of water.

W. H. S.: "Is the X-ray technique successful in the dislodgment of adhesions of one or two years' standing? Can X-ray photographs be used to measure the extent and progress of adhesions?"

Answer—The X-ray does not remove adhesions nor affect their removal in any way. Adhesions in the abdomen can often be detected by a diagnostic X-ray.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

OBEY THAT SIGNAL

ON PLENTY of hands, the entire foundation for the defensive play is based on the size of the card played by third-hand on the opening lead. Seldom should its message be violated. If it can be read as the lowest held, the player is usually asking for a switch to another suit as soon as his partner gets the lead. If it can be read clearly as higher than his lowest, it generally asks for a repeat of the same suit. If it is non-committal, the partner is asked to base his actions on trying to develop tricks in his own hand.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.) South opened the bidding here with 1-Club, considering that his great length justified a shading of his top-card strength. North answered with 1-Diamond, East injected 1-Spade, South bid 2-Clubs, West 2-Spades and North forced with 4-Diamonds, in view of his club fit. East bid 4-Spades, as an intended sacrifice, and South passed to see if his partner wanted to double it. When North instead showed a fit at 5-Clubs, South got over-ambitious. He would have done well to pass the 5-Spades which East now essayed, to see if his partner wished to double, but instead he ambitiously bid 6-Clubs. Perhaps that flamboyant call was justified by his confidence in the defenders' proclivity to mistakes. West led the spade 10, though the Q would have been the choice of most sound players, but that was unimportant. The ace won in dummy, a club was cashed and a diamond led. West won, led another spade, and the contract was made. South's hearts being parked on the dummy's contract.

West should have read his partner for six spades, with all that bidding, and for something on the side which could be only in hearts. Had he also read a low-card signal from his partner, he would have switched and beaten the contract.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

RELEASED BY
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FIFTY

MAC CONTINUED his explanation of the murder.

"I don't know when or where Horace evolved his murder scheme. We do know that he had been studying poisons, as witness the volume in the library. Evolve it he did, however—and the cleverest part of the whole business to me is the way in which he secured the stuff. Sending his own wife after it!"

I interrupted: "How did he force her to buy the poison?"

"He didn't force her, Elsie. You see, it was a usual arrangement, Horace sending his wife for poisons. The clerk at the drug store told us about that. Mrs. Horace was in the habit of making weekly shopping trips to Columbus. What was more natural than that Horace would request her to do his shopping for him? It was his habit to make a list of his laboratory needs, and for his wife to have these prescriptions filled for him in the city."

"How—how diabolical!" I exclaimed, horrified.

"On, it probably started out innocently enough," Mac assured me. "It only ended badly. Well, so much for the motive. Horace wanted money, he wanted Della. He murdered his wife. He couldn't permit her to live; she knew too much. Besides he wanted Della at once, before Reginald could get her."

"And so," he concluded, "we have the motive. We have the poison. That leaves the method."

"Yes, what was the method?" Phil queried eagerly.

Mac began: "Horace decided for obvious reasons to commit his crime on the night of the ball. To do this he must set the scene. He must know to the minute when his mother would appear in the salon; and he must arrange to have her there the midnight visit to the salon. He was scouting, so to speak."

I put in: "Then it was he who upset the chair?"

"Yes. It took me hours of figuring to hit upon the reason for that excursion. It wasn't until I glanced through the appointment book in the lobby that I saw the light. He had to find out the exact time of his mother's appointment. He couldn't afford to murder the wrong party."

"Where did he get the key?" I asked.

Mac made a very face. "It seems that the good Greasy maid" her keys and mysteriously found them again."

"I'll be damned!" exclaimed Phil. "Why didn't she mention the fact?"

Mac snorted. "Why didn't she mention a lot of facts? Greasy may be an excellent housekeeper, but she'll never make a detective! If she had opened her mouth concerning a number of things, we might have reached the truth sooner. But I'll explain that later on. To continue with the method: Elsie played into the murderer's hands by dining downstairs the evening of the first murder. However, lassie, had you remained in your room," he turned to me, "Horace would have invented some excuse to get you out of the way. So don't let that worry you!"

"During Elsie's absence Horace

jimmied the three drawers and attached his poison in the tissue to the fourth one. The stage was set! The murder machine was in order!"

"And I?" I stammered. "I—threw the switch!"

"You threw the switch, yes," Mac affirmed. "And then something else happened that worked to the murderer's advantage. You left the salon for half an hour!"

I frowned: "I never did get the straight of that business. Why did Mr. Horace ask me to deny my absence?"

"He wanted it to appear that his mother died in your presence. He was being cautious. Of course he didn't think that her death would be pronounced other than normal; but he evidently thought far enough ahead to grasp that your absence, were it known, might create a question in the minds of the police. In other words, the fact that Mrs. Witherspoon died in your presence, before your very eyes, was testimony enough that she had met with no foul play. You could swear that no one aside from yourself had touched the old lady. On the other hand, should your absence come to light, Horace could insist that the old lady had been poisoned during your absence from the salon."

"I see!" I said. "How hard he was! He came to watch his mother die!"

"I suppose," Mac theorized, "that he was a little nervous in spite of his elaborate precautions. He had to see for himself how his plans were working. He could not afford to take a chance on his wife putting two and two together. I rather believe she suspected him, anyway, of the arsenic poisoning, I mean, judging from her actions."

"But how," I wanted to know, "did he mean to explain her death?"

"She wasn't ill health."

"We can't be certain about that, Elsie. I'm of the opinion he meant to suggest suicide. He had no reason to believe we would ever discover the adhesive and the tissues."

"And it was he who suggested that she have a permanent?"

"Yes. Daphne has admitted it. She was present at the time. Mrs. Horace, it seems, was aware of her husband's infatuation for Della Craig. In her way, she loved Horace; at any rate, she wanted to keep him badly enough to decide to go in for beauty treatments at her age. Horace admired Della's hair; he remarked about its beauty in his wife's presence and suggested, quite casually, that a permanent wave might improve her own straggling hair. She made an appointment with you and told him of it."

"When you, Elsie, described Daphne's strange behavior at Ellis' question concerning the permanent, I immediately suspected the cause. Horace was the only person who could have made such a suggestion with the certainty that it would be carried out."

I sighed. "Poor woman! What a life—and what a death!"

Mac continued: "I was baffled

when we found no second tissue following her death. I have recently learned that our mutual friend and helper, Mrs. Grey, carried it off from the salon. She found it on the floor and put it into her apron pocket; later she burned it in her room when it fell out of her clothes while she was undressing. I think Horace meant to destroy both tissues, but luck there was against him. When the drier hoods were lifted, the air tore them from their fastenings and blew them away. He did remove the adhesive, and he counted on the tissues having no meaning for anyone if they were found."

I said weakly: "It's really very simple when you know, isn't it?"

Mac grinned. "Daphne and Richard created a good many tangles." I recalled a forgotten perplexity. "Why did Mr. Richard insist that his mother's death was murder? He must have known that the police in the house would complicate matters for himself."

"I think he had a guilty conscience, Elsie. Perhaps, too, he had ideas of his own concerning his parents. Who knows? I'm quite certain that Horace insisted that it was not murder to protect Richard as much as himself. As soon as he learned of the missing emeralds he had a hunch who had stolen them. He knew more about that young man's affairs than Richard imagined."

"Mac!" Phil said. "One thing worries me! How did you know about the electrician and the second phone call?"

Mac grinned wickedly. "Benson, my lad, if I could claim omniscient powers I would! However, my conscience forces me to admit that the gods who guide detectives stationed me in the hotel lobby the morning young Witherspoon came in to send his wife. Naturally, I didn't attach any importance to the incident at the time. It was only later that I recalled how very nervous and upset the lad had been."

I had a further question: "What about the electrician and the second phone call?"

"Horace made the second call. Another oversight on Greasy's part. She neglected to mention that she had reported the broken drier to her employer. Naturally, she didn't suspect him. And naturally he did not want the driers immediately repaired. He had further use for them."

"And it was he who hid the cyanide in the powder box?"

"It must have been, Elsie." And I lapsed into silence.

The detective rose and stretched his long arms. "Thus endeth the tale, children. No more rabbits. Tomorrow I go back to Chicago, where crime is open and above-board. Coming to town, Benson?"

Phil gave me a long look. He shook his head. "Not now, Mac. I have a loose end or two to tie before I leave."

Mac McIntyre smiled broadly; his blue eyes twinkled. "Remember what I always told you, Elsie," he said cryptically. "So long, red-head!"

"So long, Mac."

The door closed behind him for the last time. I got up and went to the window. It had stopped raining. The moon sailed, a silver sickle, in the sky. I turned. The moon was in the room. It was in Phil's eyes! I often think of that moon as I bustle around our Chicago apartment waiting for Phil to come home to dinner.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—Not since Gene Tunney looked up from his volume of sonnets and declared himself the man of destiny he ultimately turned out to be, has a course been charted more meticulously for a fighter than the young Billy Conn hopes to travel to the world light heavyweight championship, then to the heavyweight crown. Almost unanimous opinion is that he can't miss winning the former title. The other one is something else again, with a guy named Joe Louis around.

Anyhow, they still were talking about him around here today and a little put out over his decision to go into retirement in Hollywood for two or three months of work and rest designed to put some brawn on him. He convinced them all on Friday night when he out-brawled Fred Apostoli in that 15 rounds of butting, gouging and low-punching and he is virtually assured of a sellout crowd any time he appears at Madison Square Garden henceforward.

In fact, for this second battle between the young Pittsburgher and the middleweight champion, they had 500 more persons than seating capacity in the garden and others were turned away. Not even Louis did that well. They will turn out next to see him against Melio Bettina or John Henry Lewis, claimants to the light heavy crown both of whom he expects to beat to clinch the 175-pound title en route to an eventual crack at J. Dark Destruction Louis himself.

Homer Reber Assumes Task As Pomona Master

Saltcreek Wins Grange Prize For Year

Homer Reber, Nebraska grange, was installed as master of Pomona grange at the quarterly meeting, Saturday, at Walnut school. Kenneth Wertman served as installing officer.

Others taking chairs at this session were Orley Judy, Saltcreek Valley, overseer; Mrs. Turney Glick, Washington, lecturer; Hoyt Timmons, Logan Elm, steward; Joseph Peters, Nebraska, assistant steward; Mrs. Clara Dresbach, Logan Elm, chaplain; Ira Scothorn, Scioto Valley, treasurer; C. E. Dick, Scioto, secretary; C. E. Beers, Scioto, gate-keeper; Miss Glendal Dick, Scioto, Ceres; Miss Mary Elizabeth Miller, Scioto Valley, Pomona; Miss Virginia Dreisbach, Logan Elm, Flora; Miss Mary Fraumfelter, Saltcreek Valley, lady assistant steward; Howard Noecker, Scioto Valley, member of the executive committee; the other two members are Ira Fisher of Scioto Valley and C. M. Beatty of Scioto.

Assisting Mr. Wertman in the installation ceremonies were Mrs. M. M. Bowman, master; Mrs. Loring Leist, chaplain; Miss Mildred Wertman, marshal; M. M. Bowman, regalia bearer; Loring Leist, emblem bearer; Miss Ruby Harris, soloist and Miss Dorothy Glick, pianist. Mr. Wertman and his assistants are members of Washington subordinate grange.

The results in the year contest of the subordinate granges for the best paid-up membership, best attendance at the various programs and the best attendance at Pomona, were announced at the session, Saltcreek Valley winning the first prize of $10 and, Nebraska, the second of $5.

Because of the time required for the installation ceremonies, the afternoon program was omitted. The morning session was devoted to year reports of Pomona grange. Nebraska grange was in charge of the entertainment for the affair, serving lunch to more than 200. Flowers and valentines were used in decorating the attractive tables.

Zelda Sewing Club
The Zelda Sewing club will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer of E. Franklin street. Club members are requested to bring material for remodeling into children's clothes.

Birthday Observed

Mrs. Alfred Lee of Northridge Road observed her birthday anniversary Sunday at her home with a family gathering. Spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Lee and Miss Reba Lee were Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Lee, Miss Betty Ann Lee and Mrs. Ann Hunt, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Blinn and Miss Dorothy Blinn of Newark.

Marriage Announced

Mrs. Nellie Leist of Amanda announces the marriage of her daughter, Juanita, to Mr. Leeland Griffith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Griffith of Amanda. The Rev. J. H. Lutz of the Lutheran church of Amanda officiated at the informal ceremony, which was Saturday evening at the church parsonage.

The couple will reside on a farm near Amanda, after March 1.

Birthday Party

Sunday evening, a group of neighbors and close friends of Miss Anna Pontius of Tarlton gathered at her home for a party marking her 75th birthday anniversary. During the social evening, popcorn balls and candy were served. Twenty guests were present.

Many choice gifts in addition to a shower of cards were received by Miss Pontius.

Today's Fashion

THE DEMAND for lace evening frocks is always great at this time of year. That's because we have learned that lace packs beautifully, emerging from suit case or trunk with unruffled surface. Off to Florida is this very new and handsome evening dress. It is of fine mauve lace over the same shade of tulle. It has the very smart slim silhouette to the knee, then it flares. A flange of the lace with a ruffle heading straight in front, dips up to a V where it is set on at back. The corseted look through the midriff is further accentuated by the ruffles above and below it. The lower ruffle dips down to a V in back.

course luncheon. Valentine favors marked the places.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Felix Caldwell, Miss Irene Parrett, Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Miss Mary McCrady, Mrs. A. L. Wilder, Mrs. B. L. Young, Mrs. Walter Kindler, Mrs. C. E. Wright and Mrs. Harman. The affair was at Sylvia's party home.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, February 13

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a definite swing away from long static and unproductive conditions, with a pronounced upturn to all property values and lagging investments. While this promises a stabilization of the fortunes, there also are snares and pitfalls to be prepared for by vigilance and sagacity.

Those who birthday it is may anticipate a trend away from stagnations and crystallization of the affairs. There is definite promise of an up-swing in investments and property values, with fortunes gaining much stability and security. However, there are portents of sinister omen through fraud, cheating, treachery and collusion.

Isn't it marvelous how the intricate machine of commerce constantly gathers the necessities, conveniences and luxuries of life from the four corners of the earth and puts them down right here in our home town?

Have you ever stopped to think what an important part ADVERTISING plays in making all this possible?

Without advertising, no merchant could afford to risk a large investment in merchandise — and wait and wait till some chance customer happened in. . . . Without advertising, you would be unaware of the many lovely, useful, needful things assembled in the stores for your convenience. . . . Without advertising, finding what you wanted at a price you could afford would be a matter of luck or of patient plodding from store to store.

Mass production and sales volume—through advertising — have brought to the American people an ease and comfort of living that would have been beyond the wildest dream of kinds of old.

GREAT REDUCTION IN W. P. A. PAYROLL PREDICTED BY OHIO DIRECTOR

COUNTY TO LOSE MANY WORKERS BEFORE SUMMER

Roster May Be Slashed From 485 To 170 By June 30

The Pickaway county W. P. A. relief roll may be reduced from 485, employed on Jan. 30, to 170 on June 30 if the prediction of Dr. Carl Watson, relief administrator for Ohio, comes true.

Dr. Watson prophesied Monday that a 65 percent reduction in the Ohio figure, cutting the employed persons from 245,000 to 85,927 by June 30, would be necessary as a direct result of the decreased congressional appropriation.

On March 31, the W. P. A. roll in Pickaway county will be an estimated 480; on April 30, 380; on May 31, 258; June 30, 170, Dr. Watson's statisticians declared.

This is a reduction of 5 percent for the first month, 21.7 percent for the second month, 46.7 for the third and 65 percent during June.

"Since the W. P. A. bill as passed by Congress provides that W. P. A. may not be reduced by more than 5 percent prior to March 31, it will be necessary to cut the payroll much more swiftly after that date," Dr. Watson explained.

Dr. Watson said that the figures he announced are based on the probability that the federal government will reduce W. P. A. allocations to all states proportionately. He would not comment on the probable amount of money which will be allocated to Ohio.

"That is a variable factor. The figures I have given are estimates and show what will happen in Pickaway county if Ohio is cut proportionately to the nation and if county is cut proportionately to the rest of the states.

"Various things can alter these estimates since the W. P. A. load is distributed on the basis of need."

Valentines Express Ye Olde Sweet Victorian Mood, And Real Lace One of New Wrinkles Shown this Year

Smartest Valentines for 1939 display a mood of Victorian reminiscence

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Keeping up with Saint Valentine is getting to be quite a problem. If you're looking for the very smartest kind of Feb. 14 missives, you may be surprised to find that they are definitely in a mood of Victorian reminiscence with all the appurtenances of Cupid's darts and pierced hearts, not to mention the cooing doves of romantic tradition.

Of course, these old-fashioned motifs are rendered in a manner decidedly different and up to the minute, but definitely they indicate that America is more sentimental in its valentines than for several seasons past.

Hearts and Flowers

Hearts, of course, a-plenty adorn the new valentines. Many of them reflect the vogue for things old-fashioned with just a good big red heart as the center of the design—the kind mother used to get when she was a girl. Or, you may find one done in white satin adorned with a hand-painted rose (roses, by the way, are the good saint's favorite flower this year) and smelling delightfully of fragrant sachet.

Or a prim garden row shows each blossom a tiny heart. Taking their sentiments less seriously, other valentines show an amorous musician banging out love songs on a heart-shaped piano or a dangerous robber Cupid in full flight clutching a heart, the appropriate verse reading:

Calling all cars—be on lookout—Slick young feller—well armed—Looks like nudist—goes by name of Cupid—alias "love-bug"—has just stolen a nice warm heart—Headed in your direction—Call—All—Cars!

Here's hoping you catch him with the goods!

Again, if you like to cling to the good old traditions, you'll appreciate the way the 1939 valentines preserve a touch of lace as a seasonal past.

Of course, there are also variations of the lace theme, there are grave prints and line drawings and photographed lace and clever lace effects obtained by scalloping the edge of an overlay or printing on the reverse side of cellophane.

Ah! Sweet Romance! Sentiments, too, breathe again the spirit of romance with a large number of frankly addressed southern decoration. But not that old-fashioned fragile paper lace. Dear me, no! A bow of real lace used as a tie. A strip of stiffened lace for a border. A lovely lady with a skirt of real lace under cellophane. And just by way of further variations of the lace theme, there are grave prints and line drawings and photographed lace and clever lace effects obtained by scalloping the edge of an overlay or printing on the reverse side of cellophane.

The love that's in the message This greeting would convey—Is deeper and more tender Than words can ever say—It brings my heart's affection—My heart's best wishes, too, To the one who's nearest, dearest—My own dear Sweetheart, YOU!

In these days when the fair sex enjoys special privileges of self-expression, of course, there are some clever valentines to fit the occasion for the ladies to send to the laddies. They are not so very numerous, however. Perhaps Miss 1939 is really a bit bashful and retiring, after all, or perhaps she gets her man by more subtle methods.

On the other hand, there are quite a few valentines for exchange between husband and wife. There are also numerous valentines, ranging from serious expressions of deep affection, to gayly casual designs, for exchange between various members of the family, mother, father, brother and sister all have their specially appropriate missives, and these "family" valentines are widely popular.

Comics Are Different For those who don't take Dan Cupid too seriously, there are plenty of comic valentines, but they are in a different vein than the old-time unkindly comics. Their humor is not barbed, and often they indulge in puns or plays on words. There are also novelty valentines such as missives with real charm attached which may be taken off and worn later on a bracelet; a valentine "luv-u-gram" in the manner of a telegram, and others which open to reveal one enclosed message after another.

For the less seriously minded the animal kingdom is co-operating to observe Valentine's Day in a big way this year. These range all the way from elephants expressing an appropriate weight of affection to the favorite Minnie and Mickey Mouse. Frolicsome puppies and mischievous pussies are strongly in the majority.

GREAT REDUCTION IN W. P. A. PAYROLL PREDICTED BY OHIO DIRECTOR

COUNTY TO LOSE MANY WORKERS BEFORE SUMMER

Roster May Be Slashed From 485 To 170 By June 30

The Pickaway county W. P. A. relief roll may be reduced from 485, employed on Jan. 30, to 170 on June 30 if the prediction of Dr. Carl Watson, relief administrator for Ohio, comes true.

Dr. Watson prophesied Monday that a 65 percent reduction in the Ohio figure, cutting the employed persons from 245,000 to 85,927 by June 30, would be necessary as a direct result of the decreased congressional appropriation.

On March 31, the W. P. A. roll in Pickaway county will be an estimated 460; on April 30, 380; on May 31, 258; June 30, 170, Dr. Watson's statisticians declared.

This is a reduction of 5 percent for the first month, 21.7 percent for the second month, 46.7 for the third and 65 percent during June.

"Since the W. P. A. bill as passed by Congress provides that W. P. A. may not be reduced by more than 5 percent prior to March 31, it will be necessary to cut the payroll much more swiftly after that date," Dr. Watson explained.

Dr. Watson said that the figures he announced are based on the probability that the federal government will reduce W. P. A. allocations to all states proportionately. He would not comment on the probable amount of money which will be allocated to Ohio.

"That is a variable factor. The figures I have given are estimates and show what will happen in Pickaway county if Ohio is cut proportionately to the nation and if county is cut proportionately to the rest of the states.

"Various things can alter these estimates since the W. P. A. load is distributed on the basis of need."

Ah! Sweet Romance!

Sentiments, too, breathe again the spirit of romance with a large number of frankly addressed

"Sweetheart" cards. Typical of many is one showing a loving couple seated on a heart of rose colored satin against a background of roses, the booklet, headed "A Valentine for My Sweetheart," opening to read:

The love that's in the message—This greeting would convey—Is deeper and more tender—Than words can ever say—It brings my heart's affection—My heart's best wishes, too, To the one who's nearest, dearest—My own dear Sweetheart, YOU!

George Holmes, Famous Newspaperman, 44, Dies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—From President Roosevelt, Washington officialdom, the newspaper corps of the nation and personal friends in every walk of life, there poured a flood of messages and tribute today mourning the death of George R. Holmes, International News Service Washington bureau chief for twenty years.

Holmes died suddenly in his home on Massachusetts avenue a little after 1 a. m. Sunday, from a heart attack. He had a recurrent stomach ailment over the last several years, and two years ago suffered a mild heart attack, but was apparently in perfect health the afternoon before he died. He was at his desk until 5 p. m. Saturday, went home for dinner and retired early.

One of the outstanding newspaper men of the nation, Holmes was 44 years old, and only a few weeks ago relinquished the presidency of the Gridiron Club, world famous Washington newspaper club.

He is survived by his widow, the former Catherine Early, sister of Stephen T. Early, secretary to President Roosevelt, and two children, Mary Catherine, 16, and Kathryn Early, 7.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a. m. Tuesday, at the Gawler funeral home—where only a few weeks ago Holmes stood to pay high tribute to another newspaper man, his close friend, the late Paul Y. Anderson.

Holmes will be buried in Arlington national cemetery, across the river from and overlooking the Washington which he scrutinized with the careful, analytic and impartial eyes of a press association man for a score of years.

President Roosevelt was notified by Stephen Early that Holmes had died early Sunday, and was one of the first to dispatch a note of condolence to the famous reporter's family. All through Sunday messages streamed in from the supreme court, the political world, the cabinet, and from localities far from Washington and professions not even remotely connected with newspaper writing, expressing grief and shock.

This morning the Holmes residence was banked with flowers, and messages of tribute and condolence continued in a steady stream.

George Holmes' newspaper career covered every phase of life, high drama, tragedy and happiness, individual and national, over the two last decades. His circle of acquaintance was wide and diversified. He knew and wrote about most of the outstanding figures of his time, and about virtually every momentous event.

When the Unknown Soldier was brought to America and laid in his marble tomb in Arlington, George Holmes wrote a story that won honorable mention in the Pulitzer awards of the year. He covered the famous Loeb-Leopold trial; he was one of the correspondents with President Harding when he died; for years his sandy head bent over a clicking typewriter as the national political parties chose their candidates for the presidency. Wherever the news was big, there was George Holmes.

Scioto Prosecutor Talks At Gathering In Newly Remodeled Home

Circleville's lodge of Eagles was host at an initiation Sunday to approximately 150 Eagles from the 12th Ohio district.

Six candidates of the Circleville lodge were initiated by a degree team of the Springfield lodge.

Cities represented in addition to Springfield were Columbus west side, London, Washington C. H. and Greenfield. Marvin A. Kelly, prosecutor of Scioto county, addressed the gathering on lodge work.

Representatives of the district lodges were served a dinner by the Circleville group in the new dining room at the Eagles home. The Circleville lodge was highly complimented by representatives of the various cities on the improvement and enlarged lodge home, dedicated recently.

Leonard Morgan is president of the Circleville lodge. C. A. Kadel, secretary, was in charge of arrangements for the district meeting.

FLORENCE DARST FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE TUESDAY

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the residence, 359 E. Mound street, the Rev. R. T. Kelsey officiating, for Mrs. Florence Luella Darst, 68, widow of Milton Kellenberger Darst. Mrs. Darst died Saturday at 12:30 p. m. after a month's serious illness. Organic heart disease was fatal.

She was a native of Hocking county, born May 17, 1870, a daughter of John F. and Nancy McAbee Payne, and came to Circleville at the age of eight with her parents. She married Mr. Darst in Circleville June 9, 1899. Her husband died in 1928.

Surviving are a brother, John, of Newport, Ky., and a sister, Mrs. W. A. Anderson of Clarksburg.

A brother, Augustus Payne, died last Aug. 22, and a sister, Mrs. John Hoffman, died last October 17. A daughter preceded her in death.

Mrs. Darst was a member of the Evangelical church.

Funeralbearers will include D. C. Rader, Russell Imier, Clarence Martin, Fletcher Maddox, Clarence McAbee and Earl McAbee.
